Not Passengers, Workers On New "Queen Mary"

COURSE IS COMPLETED

Series of Mining Lectures Ended—Importance of Northern Opportunities Stressed

Dr. Joseph T. Mandy, resident mining engineer, concluded the interesting series of lectures for prospectors and mining men which he has been conducting during the past few weeks by presenting a discourse in the nature of a travelogue of the mining areas of northwestern British Columbia and the Yukon, illustrating the address with lantern slides. Among the various areas described were Anyox, Alice Arm, Portland Canal, Unuk River, Taku River, Rainy Hollow, Atlin and the Klondyke, including gold dredging operations in the Yukon. Some of the principles followed in the bringing in of important mines were described.

At the outset, Dr. Mandy stressed the promising future that appeared to be ahead for the mining industry in this district and the opportunities which awaited those who were equipped for intelligent prospecting. For such prospectors, the prospects for rich reward were very bright. During the last twenty years, Dr. Mandy informed his listeners, the mineral production of this district had been $160,000,000, or approximately one-fifth of the total production of the whole province in that period. This production had come from a comparatively small area of 52,000 square miles out of the total area of 144,000 square miles of the district which in turn was one-third of the entire province. Such had been the output resulting from a small amount of prospecting in a comparatively small field.

Of the remaining 90,000 square miles of virtual virgin territory in this district, Dr. Mandy stated that it was figured by geological deduction that about 50,000 square miles was favorable for mineral deposits. Thus the great opportunity for prospecting could be readily seen. "There cannot but be a great future for mining in this northern district," declared Dr. Mandy. "Indeed the future development of the mining industry of British Columbia lies in the north and the future prosperity of the industry depends upon the development of the north where in future it will be necessary to look for the mines."

There was a large and appreciative audience of about sixty listeners at the final lecture. A vote of thanks was tendered, on suggestion of Dr. Mandy, to City Commissioner W. J. Alder for having made the City Hall available for the holding of the classes and for his co-operation and interest generally. Appreciation of support accorded by the press was also voiced. At the conclusion of the meeting many went forward to tender their thanks to Dr. Mandy personally for the excellent course of lectures which had proved so helpful and instructive.

WARSAW, April 3: (CP)—Capt. Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal for Great Britain, who has been here for the past couple of days discussing security with Polish officials, has made progress.
