POLITICAL CHANGES

If there had been an election last fall even Conservatives last night with results as follows: admit that the government would have been defeated and Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King would have taken the ray beat Miss Connie Morgan and place of Right Hon. R. B. Bennett as prime minister. The Charme Stevens, 15-1, 15-8. financial interests which Mr. Bennett represents were at their wits end. Something must be done. It was a situation that was difficult to face. Davis beat Miss Lucille Brooksbank

"The people want a bold policy and you must give it to and Miss Creddie Morgan, 15-7, hem," declared Findlayson. "Give them the Roosevelt 15-0. ouch," urged Herridge. "There's nothing like it. Steal the owder from King. If he opposes, as he probably will, go and Miss Beatrice Berner, 5-15. It was a old move, indeed, and it caught the fancy of the people. t was a most successful show.

The fly in the ointment was that a day or two after the Twelve Tables in Play at Function famous speeches were read by the Prime Minister, the Liberal members gathered at Ottawa just prior to the opening of the session. Wise counsels prevailed and it was decided not to oppose any measure that was good but held last night by the local Toc H Calgary rather to rejoice that the reactionary leader had at last society. There were twelve tables seen the light.

No excuse was given Mr. Bennett to go to the country. first, Mrs. Beattie; second, Mrs. "We will gladly help you," said Mr. King. "You have one of it We got good have land; men's first, W. All were ments were served. for Mr. King and his policy. It was a new political situation. It was unexpected.

Since the opening of the House the Liberal members; have been clamoring for more Bennett reforms but the reforms were not ready. Only one bill had been prepared, the unemployment and old age insurance and it is now law. Now the hours of work bill is before the House which is slowly getting through its routine work and the Prime Minister is hoping for an excuse to appeal to the country on the remainder of his new platform. If the legislation is passed at this session, there will be nothing left on which to appeal.

An interesting sidelight is the reaction of the Conservatives to the new policy. Most of the higher-ups were in the know and when they heard the first volley fired they curved is the line of beauty; follow winked the other eye and smiled and remarked: "We don't the straight line, thou shalt see need to worry. He's quite safe. It's all blank cartridge." the curved line ever follow thee. One or two newspaper writers went off with some hot wm. MacCall. stuff next morning but they did not repeat it. Word was passed to them that it was all right. Nothing to worry sistent effort, upon the improveabout, revolutionary but perfectly harmless.

Now that the show is about over and it is seen how little any other one thing.—Mary Baker TIME T revolutionary material Mr. Bennett had the people are Eddy. tiring of it. They are losing their enthusiasm for Bennett's new deal and, if the present Bennett slump continues for with a heart for any fate; still another month or two, the political situation will be very achieving, still pursuing, learn to similar again to what it was last fall.
