Quo Warranto Proceedings Interrupt Vancouver Recount With Mayor McGeer in Lead

VANCOUVER, Nov. 14: (CP)-The status of Judge J. N. Ellis as senior judge of the County Court was questioned in quo warranto proceedings launched in Supreme Court yesterday by Alexander Wool, longshoreman, represented by J. B. Williams, former city solicitor, to determine by what authority he is holding the recount of ballots for Vancouver-Burrard riding in the federal election. On being served with notice of the proceedings, Judge Ellis adjourned the recount to Geer, the Liberal candidate, with a net gain of ten votes in 124 out of 137 polls which have been checked to date.

The quo wararnto case will be heard on November 18.

The application states that Judge Ellis was appointed "junior county judge." He was recognized as senior judge by the government early this year.

Such a recount as this is required by statute to be conducted by the senior judge.
