GYROS AND THE PLAYGROUNDS

The work of the Gyro Club in this city has been chiefly associated with the provision of playgrounds for the children. Four of these have been established in different parts of the city in addition to the children's ball ground adjoining the Masonic Hall. These playgrounds have been used a great deal by the young folks and during the depression days they have been allowed to get out of repair.

The Gyros are now planning to put the playgrounds in good shape once more and, to help finance the work, they are holding another of their popular hoedowns which have been so successful in the past and by means of which they have raised a good deal of the money already expended. Doubtless, they will make a success of this event and as a result, help their effort to make the youngsters happy once more.

CANADA'S OLDEST BANK

Behind the Bank of Montreal, which opened in Prince Rupert 25 years ago today, as an institution there lies a history closely interwoven with that of the Dominion of Canada. In fact, its history began fifty years before Confederation. It was on the twenty-third of June, 1817, that nine merchants of Montreal signed Articles of Association for the establishment of the "Montreal Bank." This action marked the foundation of the Bank of Montreal, which today holds the distinction of being by far the oldest institution of its kind in British North America, and one of the largest financial institutions in the British Empire. It also established the beginnings of the Canadian banking sys-

Everywhere as conditions have become ripe, the bank has planted its branches for facilitating the agricultural development of the country, its manufacturing industries, and its general commerce.

Today the bank has over five hundred branches distributed throughout Canada and Newfoundland. Its value to the country is not to be measured by the amount of its capital, or by the size of its dividends, but by the security it has given to those who have trusted it, the facilities it has furnished for the exchange and increase of commodities, and the assistance it has contributed to the development of the country.

Joseph Pilsudski of Poland Was Always Revolutionist

The only way in which it could be office except when personal control of some department was needed to put 'his projects into effect. After the coup d'etat of 1926 he was offered the presidency of the country, but declined the post and turned it over to Ignace Moscicki.

Always he was the real head of the army, and, backed by its unswerving loyalty to his personal standard, he kept his country on a rigid course and was, in fact if not in name, a dictator of its policies.

Pilsudski was born in Vilna, on December 5, 1867, His parents were of aristocratic Lithuanian lineage, but the family had taken part in an uprising against Russia in 1863. and most of its estates had been confiscated.

Young Pilsudski attended a high school in Vilna, but was constantly in trouble with his Russian teachers because he insisted on talking in Polish on the school grounds. Finally, in 1885, he finished his preparatory work and went to the University of Kharkev to study medicine.

Expelled From College

But in his first year there he organized a socialist group and was expelled. He went back to his home city, continued his political agitation and in 1887 was arrested on charges of being involved in a plot against the life of Czar Alexander III. He was exiled to Eastern Siberia for five years.

Later he settled in Cracow, then an Austrian possession. He started at once to organize secret Polish fighting squads in anticipation of an eventual war between Austria and Russia.

In 1905, when Japan was fighting Russia in Manchuria, he went to Tekyo and tried to get backing for an uprising in the Russian rear, but failed to convince the Japanese that his plan was feasible.

His chance came when the world war started in 1914. He entered the Austrian army as commander of Polish Legion and took part in fighting against Russia in South Poland. He had a scheme for an independent Polish army as a nucleus of a rebirth of the nation, but Austria refused to sanction the plan, and Pilsudski quit active ser-

He was summoned from this retirement in 1916 when the central powers, at the behest of the German high command, proclaimed an intention to free Poland. Pilsudski was made a member of the provisional government in Warsaw, but soon quarreled with the German organizers of the council, was arrested and imprisoned. He stayed there until the collapse of the cen- | From Ocean Fallstral powers in November, 1918.

He entered Warsaw on November 10, a national hero, and two days later was proclaimed head of the state. In February, 1919, the diet of the new republic made him provisional president.

In 1923 he retired also as chief of the general staff, remaining at a country home near Warsaw until his coup d'etat in 1926.
