FIRST THINGS FIRST

Many people have expressed themselves as being impatient at what seemed to them the slowness of action of the government of British Columbia in providing work and wages for the people and in relieving the municipalities of some of their burdens.

At the time of the election the Liberal leader explained carefully that the provision of work and wages depended upon federal assistance but he prophesied that force of circumstances would compel the Dominion government to act soon, a prophecy which has been shown to be true within the past few weeks. It was the force of circumstance which compelled Prime Minister Bennett to make his recent radio announcements. It is the force of circumstance which is compelling him to press forward a program of minor reform and which will force Mr. King to bring forward a program of major reform when he succeeds the present prime minister.

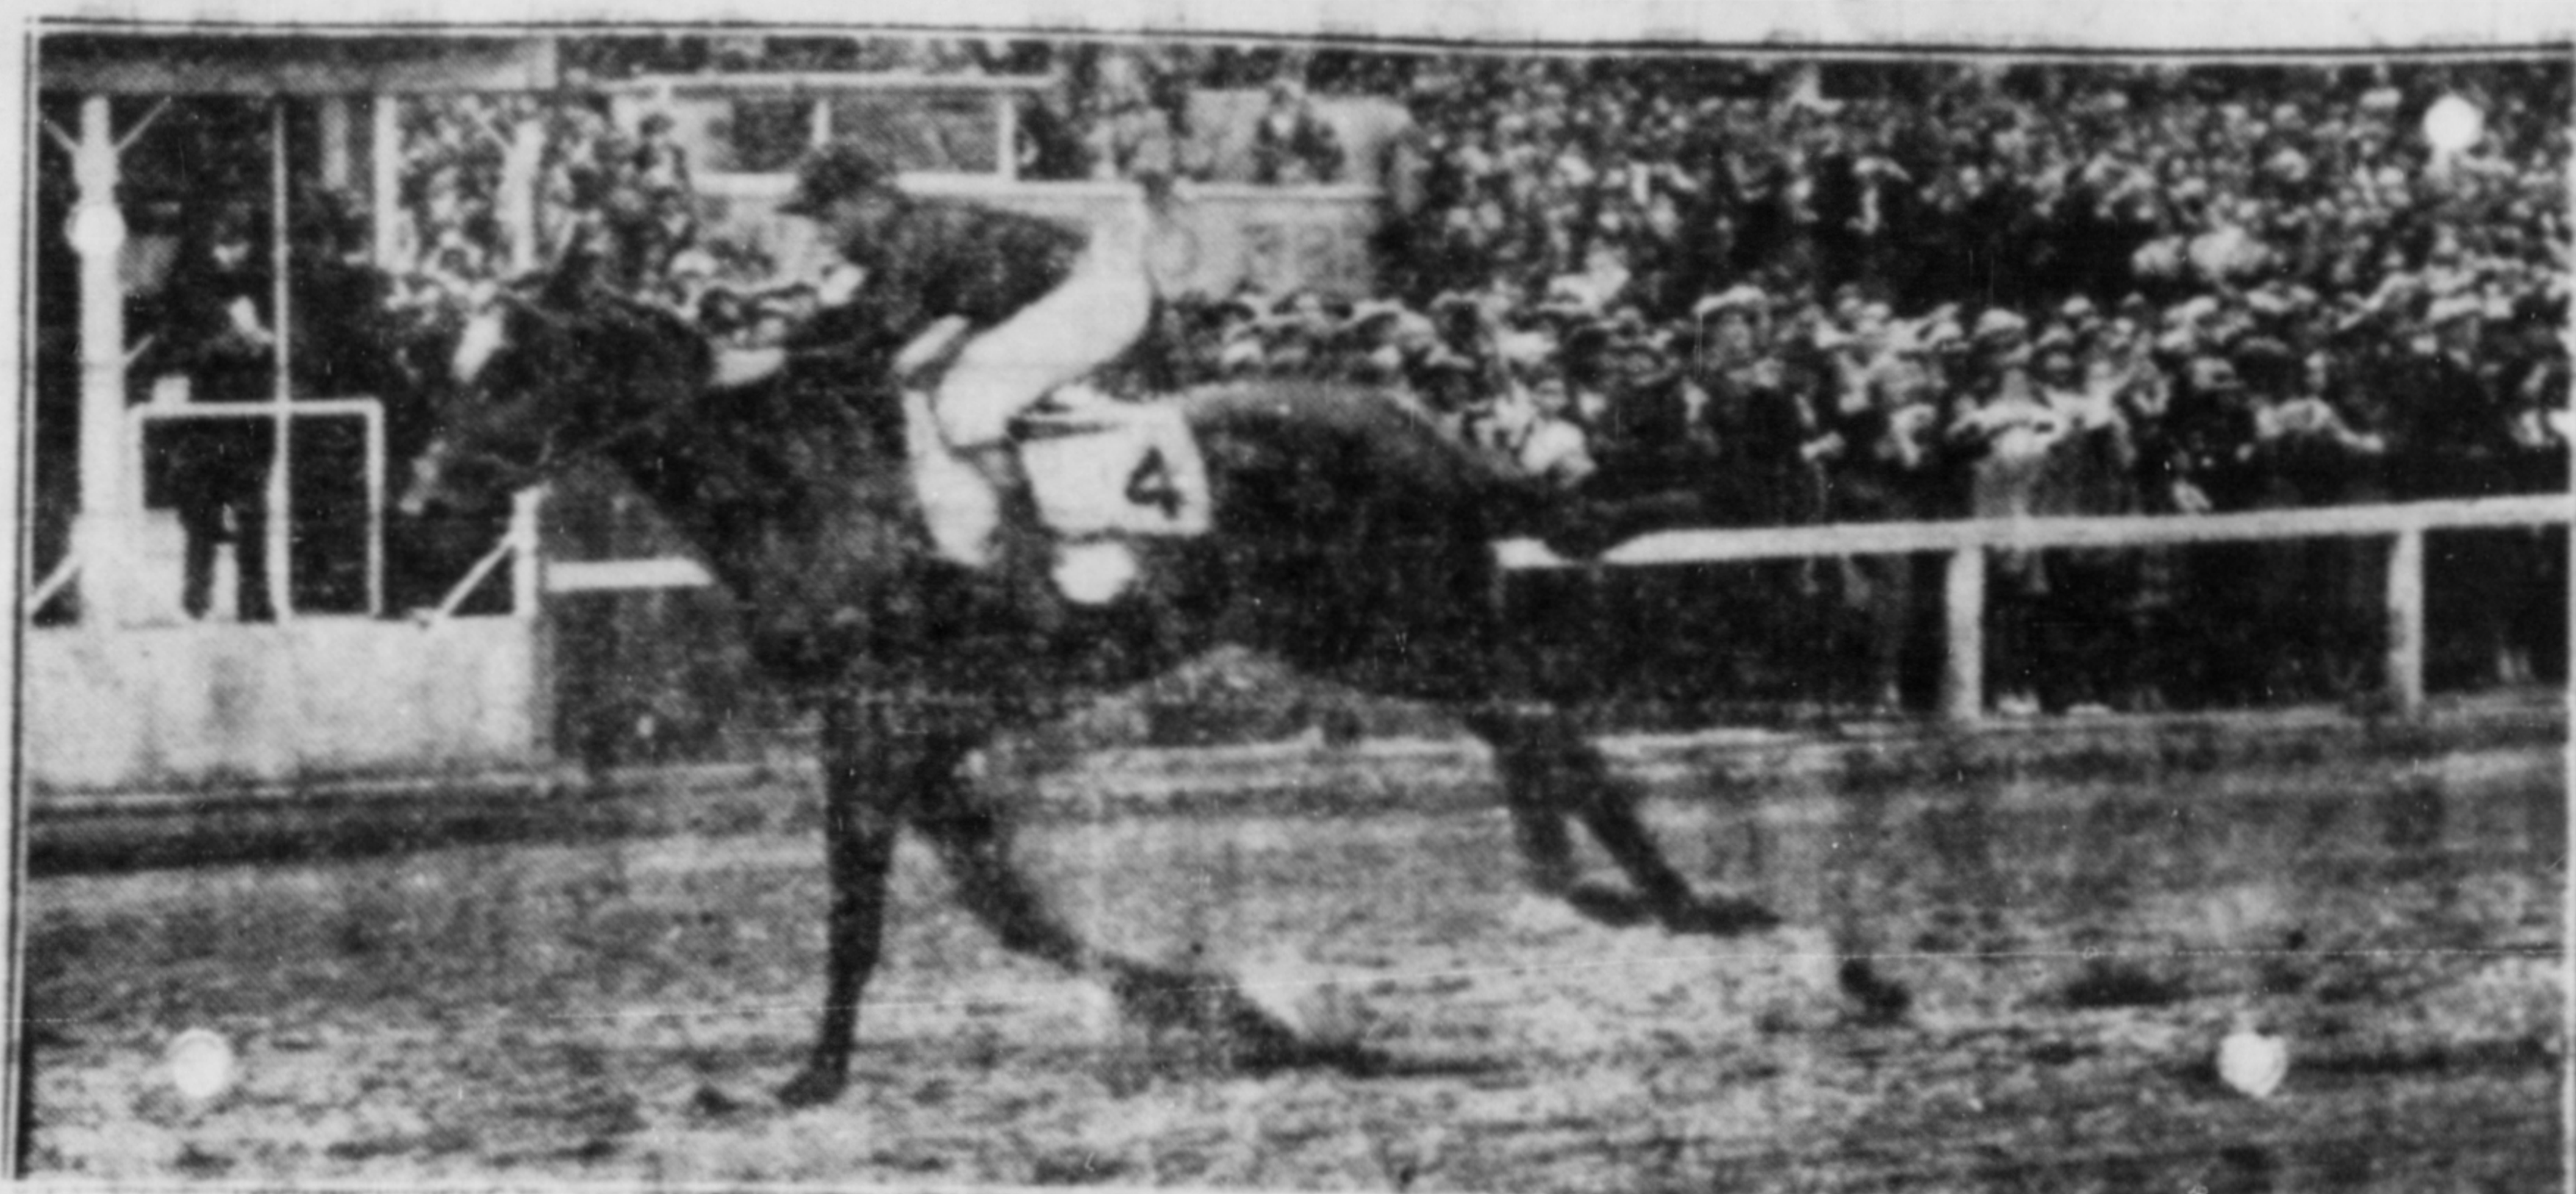

First it is necessary that the province shall rid itself of the excess interest charges and, to do this, it is absolutely necessary to balance its budget. Finance Minister Hart has been engaged on this work for several months and at last has succeeded, it is said. All is in readiness for the opening of the session at Victoria, a session which may be looked upon as the financial session of the administration. It may on that account be the most difficult session of the life of the government. It is comparatively easy to do things but difficult to sit pat until the right time arrives for action. No one likes waiting.

SHOULD DECLARE THEMSELVES

In view of the persistent campaign of President Beatty for unification of the railways, we think the leaders of each party should express themselves as to their attitude on this great question. Mackenzie King has already done so. He has declared himself clearly as opposed to placing the two big railways under one management. Premier Bennett has evaded the question. He has refused to make it a political issue and has suggested that it is a matter for both parties to deal with in unison.

In view of our present method of making laws, we think this should be settled in the ordinary way. It should be made a political issue and the people given an opportunity to declare themselves on it. If Mr. Bennett favors union of the two railways, as everyone thinks he does, he should say so plainly. If not, he should so declare himself. It would be most unfair for any government to bring about union of the railways without giving the people a chance to vote on it, either through a national plebiscite at the time of the election or through making the question a political issue and having it dealt with in the ordinary way.

Head Play, Jockey Kirtsinger up; shown finishing in the forty-third annual running of the Preakness at Pimlico, Md., so far ahead of the field that they did not get in the picture. Ladysman in second place was four lengths behind and Brover's Tip in last place was thirty lengths behind the winner. Purchased on the eve of the Derby by Mrs. Silas B. Mason for $30,000. Head play returned the Preakness purse of $26,850 to his owner.
