STRATEGIC POINT

Archbishop D. T. Owen of Toronto, Primate of the came of any commercial value, and Anglican Church in Canada, sees Prince Rupert as a strategic point that must, for national and imperial reasons, of them. The price was low with the the first of a two game series to debe developed.

People who live in Prince Rupert would like to see Prince Rupert develop but for far different reasons. They the fishermen picked them in spite Simpson Athletic Club by a score of realize its strategic importance and can see how, from of this fact. that standpoint, it should be necessary to build up here an important port but they would like to see it in order that they may be able to make a better living and that they may tween the captain and crew that The winner of the Port Simpson enjoy more of the facilities of modern city life.

Prince Rupert residents feel that in the past they have any share to the vessel. On the Rupert for the right to challenge not been always treated well either by the various federal govrnments or by the railway company. Even the provincial government shut down our highway work several years ago, removed the plant and for several years nothing was done until the present administration came into power. It has not seemed to us in the past that any but ourselves recognized the strategic value of Prince Rupert. Many have talked about it but the talk did not seem to influence their actions.

If the church has any influence we hope it will be used to impress the east with the importance of this port to the to the fishermen, which represents ing of the annual league banquet nation and even to the Empire. Possibly the vision of the from $12,000 to $14,000 per year it when the presentation of trophies churchman is far greater than that of big business and we shall yet come into our own.

CHANGE IN SYSTEM

The Liberal party is the motive power in spite of some Liberals who hold back. The great thing is that the changes are made, not rapidly enough for some people but too rapidly for others. More changes will have to be made! and a system evolved under which it will be possible for any man who is willing to work to live decently. He will not have to beg for relief. Under that system there will be none very rich and none poor. To such an end we should all strive but beware lest we be turned from the course by false:prophets who entice us with all sorts of panaceas.

ARBITRATION BASIS

You suggest arbitration of the dispute between the fishermen and the boat owners over the distribution of the proceeds of the halibut livers. As the fishermen worked up this business when it was worth almost nothing, why not give them the benefit of this year's profits with the understanding that the owners take their fifth share commencing next year? Why not make this a basis for arbitration?

FISHERMEN'S VIEWS

Editor, Daily News:-On account of the unwarranted rumors going around town that the halibut fleet are tied up because the fishermen have refused to accede to the vessel awners demand. for a 20% boat share of the livers, and for some unknown reason this also having been published in the local newspapers, owing to this misunderstanding we would like to have a little space in your valuable paper and beg to submit the following for the consideration of the Prince Rupert citizens:

Owing to the low price on halibut for the last few years the American and Canadian fishermen and vessel owners alike entered into a mutual agreement to stay in port for the purpose of trying to negotiate minimum price for fish with the dealers, and these negotiations are 10 are waiting the outcome from these negotiations. ### More Quintuplet Kids

Minnie was just another goat, moving around in the confines of her cramped shed in her own quiet way. Of course, she was expecting a blessed event, but that was not unusual, as her life was. bound to be wrapped up in the production of "kids." Then, within half-an-hour, she broke into the news. She had one, then another, and another. They totalled five, sufficient to place her on the goat pedestal for the rapic production of a family.

Shown above is Minnie's family as they appeared shortly after the event took place. Frankie Ross, jr., four-year-old proud owner of Minnie, officiated at the ceremony and with each succeeding birth, his eyes popped with delight.

"Yesterday I had one goat," Frankie explained. "Today I have a whole bunch." And everyone is doing nicely, thank you, despite the lack of a separate hospital. Quarters are even more cramped with Minnie now.
