Japanese Consul Shows How Trade Impasse Between His Country and Canada Arose

Urges Concessions Which Would Make it Possible For Renewal of Commercial Relations on More Equitable Terms

Any time that the Japanese people are relieved of the harsh burden with which they are faced through the tariff policy of the Canadian government, the Japanese government will be ready and anxious to cancel the 50% duty on Canadian goods imported into Japan. This was declared in an address delivered to the Rotary Club at its luncheon yesterday by Japanese Consul K. O. Ishii of Vancouver. In the address he recounted what he declared to be a one-sided trade policy of the Canadian government under which Japan was assessed a special duty amounting to about 70% of the value of the goods in addition to the ad valorem duty, and the sales and excise taxes. This made it impossible to export to Canada. At the same time Japan had been taking quantities of Canadian goods so that there was a very large adverse trade balance against his country.

Col. Peck is Continuing To Assist Liberals in Federal Contest; Heard in Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Sept. 27: (CP)—Bringing a surprise into the general election campaign in Vancouver Centre, Col. C. W. Peck V.C., D.S.O., former Conservative Member of Parliament for Skeena and Member of the Legislative Assembly for the Islands, took the platform with Hon. Ian Mackenzie at a Vancouver Centre Liberal rally in Moose Hall here last night. He dealt more especially with returned soldiers' problems.

Because of the stand the Bennett Government took on returned soldiers' pensions and because of its actions in nullifying the pensions tribunals set up by the Mackenzie King Government, Col. Peck finds himself unable to support a Conservative candidate in the present contest he told the audience. In the course of an outspoken address, he charged the Bennett Government with lack of sympathy for returned men.

Colonel Peck went into the history of the pension question since its inception. In 1930 he recalled the Liberal government, on the report of a parliamentary committee, passed legislation calling for the establishment of pensions tribunals. These travelling tribunals personally investigated all applications of ex-service men for pensions and a new principle—"the benefit of the doubt"—was enacted at that time. The pensions tribunals made a conscientious and determined effort to put that legislation into effect but their work was nullified by the Bennett government.

Colonel Peck quoted from correspondence with Premier Bennett in which Mr. Bennett was reported to have warned the tribunals that they had apparently forgotten that the pension bill of Canada was too high in comparison with the British government's expenditures on pensions.

In other words, said the colonel, Mr. Bennett considered the tribunals had been too favorable to returned men.

Col. Peck asked Capt. Mackenzie and the "incoming government" to give the veteran the extreme doubt in the "benefit of doubt" clause of the Pensions Act and pressed for free hospitalization of returned war veterans, whether recipients of pensions or not.

Capt. Mackenzie promised full support to the proposals outlined.

The Liberal candidate for Vancouver Centre declared that the Liberal party was pledged to oppose any amalgamation of Canadian railroads. He also opposed the gold tax and looked forward to a guaranteed price for gold.

THE POLITICAL CORNER

STRAWS SHOW HOW THE WIND BLOWS

Why do intelligent political weather forecasters predict the return of the Liberal Party to power in the coming elections?

Here are some of the reasons:

(1st)—There have been nine Dominion by-elections since 1932 and eight of them have gone Liberal.

(2nd)—In August 1933 the Province of Nova Scotia elected 22 Liberals and eight Conservatives.

(3rd)—In November 1933 the Province of B. C. elected 34 Liberals and one Conservative.

(4th)—In June 1934 the Province of Ontario elected 60 Liberals and 17 Conservatives.

(5th)—In June 1934 the Province of Saskatchewan elected 49 Liberals, 5 C. C. F. and no Conservatives.

(6th)—In June 1935 the Province of New Brunswick elected 43 Liberals and five Conservatives.

(7th)—In July 1935 the Province of Prince Edward Island elected all 30 seats Liberal.

Before each of the last four provincial elections and before the Dominion federal by-elections, the leading newspapers all predicted the elections would show how the country felt towards Bennett and the Conservative party. Particularly is this true of the New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island elections this summer where the issues discussed were almost entirely federal and the record of the Conservative Party under Bennett.

Small wonder then that the leading Conservative newspapers have been conceding the coming election to the Liberal Party.

A vote for Mr. Orme is a vote for Bennett.

A vote for Olof Hanson is a vote for the New Government.
