A VERY GOOD BEGINNING

A very good meeting was held last night in the interests of Olof Hanson. While it augured well for the return of the candidate no questions were asked in regard to the candidate's record in the House of Commons which was favorably commented on by the chief speaker, it also augured well for the campaign which is now in progress. No personalities were indulged in, the only criticisms being of the public actions of leaders of the parties and of parties generally. It was a gentlemanly meeting, void of fireworks, attended by people who were anxious to learn. And those present learned a good deal about policies of the past, present and future.

Tom Reid is a good speaker and the Scottish accent adds zest to the discourse. He is not what is generally called a "finished speaker" nor is he an orator but he manages to convey clearly the ideas he has in his mind, which is the acid test for any speaker.

QUINTUPLET ATTRACTION

The attraction of the Callander quintuplets seems to be almost as strong as ever, judged by the number of people who continue to visit them. Strangers are allowed to approach as far as the wire fence which envelops the hospital and now and then the children are held up by the nurse or attendant in order that the visitors may catch a fleeting glimpse of them. These visitors come at the rate of about ten thousand a month, they use 20,000 gallons of gasoline, pay $12,000 a month in gasoline taxes and the average distance they travel to reach the place is four hundred miles.

FIGHT FOR THIS PORT

fidence in these commodities. Down through the centuries they had been recognized mediums of exchange.

The gold standard, Mr. Reid declared, had been foisted on the nations by the manipulations of financial interests in their endeavour to control the business affairs of the world. Still sixty percent of the people of the world pinned their faith on the white metal. When silver had been debased due to this jugglery eighteen hundred million people of the world had been robbed. With the price of silver dropping from $1.29 in 1921 to 25c. two years ago, the nations on the silver standard had to pay that much more for goods. Trade was stifled, the depression came and the whole world suffered. Some of the nations endeavored to protect themselves with tariff walls but these were ineffectual as no nation could live unto itself.

The speaker referred to the vital necessity for international stabilization of currency. So long as this was not done, so long would the present economic troubles continue. Canada had had experience of losing trade through the depreciation of currency in Japan and in Australia and in New Zealand.

Financing Public Works

Canada, with wonderful resources of both gold and silver, should make more silver dollars, the speaker declared. There had been 100,000 silver dollars minted in Canada but they were at a great premium and it was hard for the ordinary person to get one. In the first issue of 100,000 silver dollars the government had actually made a profit of $70,000 and nobody had been hurt. Did not this suggest a means of financing public works about which so much was heard?

Canada, and British Columbia particularly, stood to gain great over the luncheon and tendered the development from the use of gold thanks of the club to Mr. Reid for and silver. This country should a highly illuminating discourse, fight continuously for a restoration. Guests, in addition to Mr. Reid, of a fixed parity between silver and were Olof Hanson, A.J. Prudhomme, gold. There were also few silver Arthur Brooksbank and B. E. Baidadvocates in the House of Com-ley of Prince Rupert and J. M. Cave of Vancouver. There was a large attendance of members of the club.
