THE DAILY NEWS

Vancouver, Sept. 30.-Evidence was given today at the Taxation Commission favoring the exemption from taxation of all outside capital invested in the province.

The Companies Act recently introduced by Mr. Bowser was strongly condemned. A number of business men declared it has an unjust tendency to keep outside firms from doing business in B. C.

The majority of those giving evidence favored the retention of the poll and income taxes.

The above dispatch will have a familiar look to all who read the newspapers on Saturday. But its importance at the present time warrants it being given a second day's emphasis. It means that within a few months of being put in operation, the clauses of the Companies Act taxing extra-provincial companies doing business in the Province, are having precisely the effect that all competent observers prophecised they would have; namely, to hurt the trade of the Province.

It is not suggested that the Premier and Attorney General o the Province intended to cripple the trade of the Province when they placed the obnoxious clauses in the Companies Act. Recent utterances by both gentlemen make it very clear that on questions of trade principles, both are sublimely ignorant. It is quite possible that they acted in absolute good faith, not realising the inevitable consequences of putting shackles on the feet of trade.

No one who knows them would think for a moment of accusing Messrs. McBride and Bowser of being statesmen, and it is quite post sible that they fell into the common error of thinking that they could turn taxation into protection by merely thinking of it as such, just as the Christian Science folk say they can remove pain out of the Universe by saying, "There is no pain."

Unfortunately the money markets are not susceptible to autohypnosis, and a capitalist or a corporation confronted with half dozen requests from various provinces, finds it more profitable to invest it in either of the eight provinces which do not tax capital and that I thought I saw late yesterday evening?" asked Jim. trade, rather in the one that does. All of which is very simple when you come to think it out. Creek?" "Yes."
