ADD OIL TO LIST GENEVA, Nov. 22: (CP)—Canada's proposal that oil be added to the list of articles affected by the sanctions against Italy will be considered by the League of Nations sanctions committee on Monday. While it might be possible to exhaust Italy's steel and oil supply before the end of the year, there is some hesitation in complying with the suggestion regarding oil until it is known definitely what American oil companies intend doing. Secretary of State Cordell Hull has intimated that the administration cannot prevent oil companies from supplying oil to either Italy or Ethiopia but it is felt they should defer to the policy as enunciated by the government against the supplying of material that could be used in warfare to either of the belligerents. Russia and Roumania have not expressed their views in regard to supplying oil to Italy but the former, at least, would probably co-operate with what other nations do.
