SHOOTING TRIAL ON

shop. Accused shouted: "Put down that gun. Put down that gun." Witness replied: "I'm not crazy. I'm getting off." Later witness proceeded to Telegraph Creek and made his complaint against Adsit.

Cross Examination

Under cross-examination, Gibson denied that accused had some years previous complained about the way the property was being worked. Nor had accused said not to pick up any gold. There had been an agreement whereby accused was notified of all clean-ups so that he could be present. Witness admitted that it had been the practice to pick up gold and take it to the house. This had been all accounted for, however, in the clean-ups. Witness had understood accused was familiar with the use of guns. Considerable importance seemed to be attached by Mr. McLennan, defence counsel, on the point whether accused had said: "Get away from here" or "Get away from him." Witness insisted that the latter expression had been used.

Today's Evidence

When the court reassembled this morning John William Storey, laborer employed by Gibson, took the stand. His evidence differed somewhat from Gibson's. He told of Adsit coming to the creek shortly after Gibson arrived on the morning of August 27 and ordering them off the property. His hand was shaking as he waved the gun in their direction. All were standing together within a yard or so of each other. After the shooting all except Gibson started to walk off. Gibson went in a different direction with his hands up and remarked: "That's just what I've been waiting for" and told the accused he would be sorry for what he had done. The reply of the accused was that he did not care "a damn." He had been robbed too long.

When they came to the blacksmith shop Gibson went inside and brought out a rifle. Accused said he'd better put it down but Gibson replied: "Don't worry. I won't shoot."

Cross-examined by Mr. McLennan in regard to his evidence given at the preliminary hearing, witness said Adsit was not pointing the gun at them. The gun appeared to be aimed high and they did not hear the bullet strike.

Leonard Adamson also told of the shooting. He was deaf and did not hear the conversations. He saw accused gesturing.

Joe Searfoss, who described himself as a mining engineer, also told of the event. His interpretation of what was said by accused was: "Get away from here. I'll kill you." He insisted that the gun was pointed at them moving from one side to the other and covering the group.

Cross-examined witness said he had not heard complaints of the manner in which the claim was being worked. He was in the habit of taking out nuggets or specimens instead of putting them in the flume as was customary on work of that kind. Asked where the bullet struck, witness said he did not know. It might have struck the board flume or hit the rock wall. He had no opportunity to examine. He distinctly heard the bullet whiz through the air. His hearing was extremely good.

Accused Popular

Claude Ambrose Irvine, who was cooking for Gibson, told of going to see Adsit a day or two after the shooting. He asked him who he was shooting at and the reply was that he was shooting at Gibson. He said that Adsit was a friend of his. He was generally liked in Telegraph Creek. So far as he knew he did not have an enemy in the country. Sometimes he acted as guide to hunting parties.

J. Vincent Boys, who told of arresting accused, also told of fetching the revolver from a trunk in Adsit's cabin. Accused had given himself up and had told him where to find the revolver. It was loaded in five chambers, the other chamber being empty. While he (witness) was gold commissioner accused had written him complaining of the way the lease was being worked but he (Boys) did not think he had any jurisdiction in regard to the matter. Accused had a good reputation in the country. This concluded the case for the crown.

IRAQ LIFE DESCRIBED

Rev. Henry Flores Tells Gyros Of Missionary Work in Far Land

Telling interestingly of experiences during fifteen years of missionary work in Iraq, including the period of the Great War when he was the only British subject in Basra who was not taken prisoner by the Turks, Rev. Henry Flores, for some years Anglican missionary at Kitwanga and now being moved to Australia, was the speaker at the regular weekly luncheon yesterday of the Prince Rupert Gyro Club.

The Arabs, Mr. Flores declared, were not a treacherous people as many people thought. They were a noble nation and he for one loved them. They had been great friends of the British during the war. Through them his own life had been spared.

Mr. Flores told how he had started missionary work in Malta. At first a Roman Catholic, he declared that he believed in the right to freedom of worship and the brotherhood of man which did not exist in the world today as it should. His idea of religion was to try to help others. Such a spirit would do more than the League of Nations ever could.

In 1907, Mr. Flores left Malta and journeyed to Bagdad. That city once had a million people but some centuries ago it had been decimated by plague. Now its population was about 600,000 in addition to Mohammedans here were 60,000 Jews and 25,000 Christians including many Roman Catholics. He had remained in Iraq for fifteen years.

For the last nine years, Mr. Flores stated, he had labored among the Indians of Northern British Columbia.

Dr. R. G. Large, president of the club, was in the chair and thanked Mr. Flores for his address. Guests at the luncheon, besides Mr. Flores, were F. A. Macallum, W. D. Vance, W. F. Stone, F. W. Nickerson and William Belligno (Seattle).

Too Much Asked Of Young Folks

Y.W.C.A. Secretary Thinks Youth Asked to Carry Heavy Burdens

MONTREAL, Oct. 1; (CP)—Young people today are marvelous, but the older generation tends to ask too much of them, in the opinion of Miss Catherine Louise Gates, newly-appointed general secretary of the Montreal Young Women's Christian Association. Miss Gates has had varied experience with young people, having worked with the Y.W.C.A. in Allentown, Pa., Toledo, Ohio, and, in an advisory capacity, in Brazil. She also spent some time in Russia in 1926 making a survey of conditions under the Soviet.

Miss Gates told reporters here she believed the older generation a little tired and disappointed about the world were throwing responsibilities on shoulders too young to carry them.

"It seems to me we have a tendency to sit back and say, 'Here is this marvelous younger generation to set the world right.' I feel that we have no right to put such responsibility on young people," she continued. Miss Gates saw a need for youth's courage, vision and undauntedness but felt these were lost unless guided by the experience of maturity.

Discover Crystals Believed Diamonds

Convinced Edmonton City Property Will Produce Diamonds And Rubies

EDMONTON, Oct. 1; (CP)—Diamonds and rubies can be mined within Edmonton's city limits. This is the belief of Ferdinand Pomahac, a contractor, who claims to have found rough crystals he believes to be precious stones.

Mr. Pomahac, who has visited diamond fields in South Africa, said the crystals would cut glass in the same manner as a diamond. He displayed a stone which he contends is a genuine ruby and so appraised by an Edmonton jeweler.

Location of the find is withheld by the "city prospector" who declares he has a valuable find. He intends to acquire rights to the property and develop the field.

Pomahac made a study of geology in Germany and is convinced he will produce diamonds and rubies in commercial quantity. Part of any financial benefits accruing from the venture will be used to care for sick children in Edmonton hospitals, he says.
