A HELPFUL MOVE

The rate of interest on bank deposits indicates that the banks are getting more money than they can use profitably and they wish either to discourage bank savings or to encourage people to put their money into industrial development, home building and other forms of investment. The reduction of bank savings interest will make it easier for the country to refund its bonded debt with the idea of reducing the interest rate and thus saving the country a huge expenditure every year. Finance Minister Hart of Victoria, will undoubtedly welcome the move which will be helpful to him in his effort to refund the provincial debt.

TOLMIE AS CANDIDATE

Former Premier Tolmie has agreed to become a candidate in the Conservative interests in Victoria. It is a foregone conclusion that he will put up a good fight for election. Many people have a strong regard for the former Premier, feeling that he was a victim of circumstance and that his failure was due to various causes over which he had no control. Unless the Liberals put up a strong man, there will be danger of letting slip a seat that naturally should go Liberal just now.

WHAT HAVE YOU DONE?

The most important question any person should ask himself as he passes through this world is "What have I done?" At one time if a person had committed no crime he was considered to be an estimable citizen. If he was successful in business and went to church he was an outstanding person. Today people are looking at things differently. Many a man who has been to jail has become one of the best citizens. He has built on his experiences and has become a constructive person who has left a mark on the world.

Possibly the most despicable person is the one who makes money and then sets out to "have a good time" for the rest of his life. Of course he fails, so far as the good time is concerned. The most estimable person is the one who sets out to do something which will benefit his country, his province, his community and who carries it through successfully. Some people devote their lives to science, others to art, others again to public service. Some are reformers and others are builders. Incidentally most people are trying to earn enough money so that they may live decently. But that is only an incident. It is the commonplace part of living. The best citizen does not stop at that. He does not stop at eating and drinking and voting. He wants to do something that will be a lasting mark of his having lived.

Smiths Do Battle In British Open

Youthful Horton and Old Master MacDonald Favorites in Golf Classic

LONDON, May 22: (CP)—Whoever wins the 1936 British open—and right now the odds favor ranky young Horton Smith, the big-money winner of the American winter golf campaign—gallery-ites will be pulling for a long-sought victory by the "Old Man of Carnoustie," MacDonald Smith.

Since Bobby Jones and Walter Hagen dropped out, after their five-year reign from 1926 to 1930, the open lacked the old-time flavor of international greatness. Mediocre contingents of American invaders, in the past two years, have taken still more glamor off the event.

But this year's "Battle of the Smiths," young Horton and the veteran MacDonald, will go far toward reviving it as a front-rank attraction. Now 46, the popular Mac Smith has been trying to win the British open—and just missing—since early post-war days. Twice he has fought his way within sight of the goal only to be swept back by belated blasts that couldn't be stopped. In 1930, it was Bobby Jones blazing to immortality on his "Grand Slam" rampage—and Mac Smith ran second. In 1932 he was second to Gene Sarazen.

Born in Carnoustie, Scotland, now well past his prime but still a brilliant stylist, Mac Smith never has won a national championship. For years, British galleries have been watching the old master trying to pull one out of the fire, and since this may be his last whack at the title, they will be cheering him on harder than ever. Besides capturing second place in 1930 and 1932, Smith was third for three years running, 1923-4-5 and fourth in 1931 and 1934.

The championship, starting June 24 at Hoylake, will see last year's "dark-horse" winner, Alf Perry, defending his title also against several American challengers, including Gene Sarazen, Tommy Armour, Henry Picard and Jimmy Thomson and against a strong British field listing Henry Cotton, Arthur Padgham, Percy Alliss and Charles Whitecombe.

TELLS OF ISLANDERS

little need for labor. Such work as was done was performed by the women and, on account of the heat and the mosquitoes it was desirable to work at night.

Mr. Vandersluys spoke highly of the people. The men were of good physique. They used lime to turn their hair ginger color. They lived chiefly on tropical fruits with a little meat or fish. They were great musicians, having a natural ear for harmony.

The speaker mentioned the excellent work done by missionaries on the islands, and the keen interest taken in religion by the natives.

The gathering at the luncheon was a large one with about a dozen visitors, some from out of town and some local men.

The visitors included A. G. Rix, Dr. W. A. Riddell and James Bryant of Prince Rupert, R. M. Pidgeon, Capt. Albert Rippon, E. G. Symonds, Edward Lipssett and G. S. Balfour of Vancouver; Dr. A. L. Pritchard of Nanaimo and S. G. Barclay of Victoria.

British Betting On Kay Stammers

Critics Find Drive of Tilden And Grace of Lenglen in Tennis Star

LONDON, May 22: (CP)—With a marked improvement in her backhand game, comely Kay Stammers, 21-year old British tennis sensation who blasted Helen Wills Moody to defeat in two sets last year, 6-0, 6-4, aims to become queen of the world's courts within the next few months.

The fleet, blue-eyed brunette started her 1936 campaign with a slashing triumph over the veteran Betty Nuthall, 6-2, 6-2, in an exhibition that prompted the critics to compare her drives with Tilden's and her grace with Suzanne Lenglen's. In the early season size-up, as viewed by conservative critics, the dashing girl from St. Albans appears far ahead of her nearest British rival, Dorothy Round, with whom she is bracketed in the No. 1 position over here.

Miss Stammers is expected to prove a serious stumbling block to American hopes, as represented by Mrs. Moody and Helen Jacobs, at Wimbledon. The beautiful south-paw's backhand, always before the vulnerable point in her armor, no longer is a major source of trouble. She has coupled this improved backhand with slamming drives to both wings and net work comparing favorably with the finesse shown by Mrs. Moody and Lenglen in her prime.
