Fighting Off Bandits

A handful of men, aided by natives, held the United States legation today against savage attack by bandits as thousands of Ethiopian deserters from the demoralized army converged on the city hot for vengeance on all foreign residents of the capital. United States and other nationals have sought safety in the British legation which is well protected.

Dr. Malley, head of the British Red Cross, was seriously wounded by natives who also attacked Dr. T. A. Lambie of Toronto, mission service director. Lambie drove off the attackers and escaped.

The capital is awaiting the arrival of two French Senegalese companies reported enroute to quell the uprising of fanatic tribesmen. Italian soldiers encamped twenty miles away, are also on the way.

To Help U. S. Legation

LONDON, May 4: (CP)—The British government today asked Sir Sidney Barton, minister to Ethiopia, to do everything possible to help the United States legation in Addis Ababa. Aid from the British was requested after a second attack on the consulate was threatened. The first attack by a frenzied mob was beaten off by officials and native servants.

French Legation Fired On

PARIS, May 4: (CP)—Paul Bodard, French minister to Ethiopia, reported today that Ethiopian soldiers assigned to guard his legation had mutinied and turned their guns on the building.
