EDITORIAL

Salvation Army

The visit of the Commissioner of the Salvation Army draws attention to the splendid work that organization is doing throughout the world. Wherever there is need for service, there the Salvation Army may be found.

In Prince Rupert the Army has for many years been well represented. There have been excellent officers in the past and the present adjutant is making a name for herself in connection with the work she is doing, even though she is doing it quietly and unobtrusively. It gives us great pleasure to testify to the fine work being done in Prince Rupert by this organization.
