SETTLEMENT OF CANADIAN LANDS

Saskatoon will be the scene of an Empire settlement convention commencing September 23 and lasting for three days. The primary aim of the gathering seems to be to try to arrange a plan whereby the overcrowded conditions in the United Kingdom may be relieved and the surplus population be settled in Canada under a wholly new scheme of land settlement whereby the new settlers would be trained in this country before being left to themselves and returned home if not found suitable or if they desire to go. That plan is known generally as the Hornby plan and is being advocated by Brigadier General Hornby, all of his time and much of his money being expended in forwarding the plan and making efforts to perfect it.

Many prominent British people are willing to put money into the scheme and an effort is now being made to get the British government to do the greater part of the financing.

So far as Canada is concerned, it is pointed out by the backers of the scheme that the people in this country drawing relief are mostly people who are not adapted to life on the land and who do not want to engage in farming. As long as it is assured that the new settlers will not drift into the cities to swell the ranks of the unemployed no objection to the plan should come from labor and from a business point of view it is pointed out by the backers of the plan that it would immeasurably increase the business of the country once the plan became operative.

The success of the plan, it seems to us, will depend very largely on the people engaged in the work of organizing, managing and supervising it.

MEANS OF RETREAT

The sage of New Hazelton criticizes the Daily News for suggesting that Prince Rupert people might need the highway as a means of retreat from a possible enemy. He says that usually Canadians do not retreat. And yet we think if an enemy were bombarding Prince Rupert, a place that is wholly undefended except for skeleton militia units without guns, the said sage would wish to retreat and take the members of his household with him and he would find it difficult to take refuge at Hazelton without a highway connecting that place with Prince Rupert.

CLUES ARE LOOKED FOR

Police Seeking Further Information
On Peace River Fur Robbery

PRINCE GEORGE, Sept. 5.—A Canadian Airways plane, with Pilot Forrester at the controls, took off from Prince George on Sunday afternoon for Fort Nelson via Fort St. John, with a full load of police officials intent on clearing up the details of the robbery of the Hudson's Bay Company post at Fort Nelson on July 12, when $30,000 worth of company fur disappeared. The plane carried Police Officer Armstrong of Victoria, Sergeant E. Gammon, Inspector T. Van Dyk and Constable Frank Cook of Prince George, and a radio outfit and operator. The plane load was so heavy that it was deemed necessary to leave the mechanic behind.

Although Bert Sheffield and Harry Courvoisier stand charged with the fur robbery, and have had their trial set for Thursday, September 17, it is evident the robbery could not have been pulled off by two men. The evidence secured by the police is said to point to the fact that at least three men had a hand in it. Thomas Clarke, the man in charge of the post, was not in the building when the robbery occurred. The three men in the post were held up by two men and securely tied. Their captors talked of accomplices, and from the weight of the fur stolen the two men who held up the occupants of the post must have had the assistance of at least two or three others. The moving of the fur from the post would require at least two canoes. The theory of the police is that one canoe used was that of Sheffield and Courvoisier, and that the second was an Indian's canoe which had been tied up at the post, containing two paddles and an axe, which was stolen.

The two men charged with the robbery have entered pleas of "not guilty" and deny all knowledge of the crime. They had been trapping in the Fort Nelson district, and at the time of their arrest are said to have had $4000 worth of fur in their possession, none of which it is suggested formed part of the loot from the Fort Nelson post. Courvoisier it has since developed had the habit of keeping a diary of his movements. The entries in the diary would establish his innocence of the robbery if the same could be accepted; but there was something unusual in connection with the diary. Courvoisier says he kept his diary on birch bark, and when the bark became filled with entries he threw it away and began over again with a new piece of bark. The diary he had in his possession at the time of his arrest covered the day of the robbery of the Fort Nelson post and some days prior to it.

Little Is Known

About all the police know definitely about the Fort Nelson robbery is that the post was raided and $32,000 worth of fur stolen; and it appears as a well-planned crime. The fur stolen represented the Hudson's Bay purchases in the district for one year. The fur had been baled ready for shipment to London. Once a year a vessel makes its way up the Liard and the Nelson with supplies for the post and takes out the fur catch, generally arriving during the month of July. As the post was raided on Sunday, July 12, there is the suggestion the men who planned the robbery knew the furs had been baled, and that the supply vessel would be late in arriving. Whether the stolen fur was moved by airplane or by horses it would have to be moved in the first instance by canoe, in view of its bulk and weight.

That the stolen Indian canoe was used to assist in the transport seems reasonable, and this suggests in turn that the bandits had a fairly accurate knowledge as to happenings in Fort Nelson. They would hardly plan a fur robbery without figuring out the transport end of their venture, and they could hardly leave the matter of picking up an extra canoe to chance. It looks as if they knew the Indian canoe would be available when they wanted it. Although no trace has been had so far with respect to the stolen fur it seems improbable it could be moved any great distance by horses without attracting attention, even though the thieves had five days start before the crime was reported to the provincial police in Victoria. What is regarded as more likely is that

YANKS GOING VERY STRONG

Won Again Yesterday With Victory
Over Red Sox—Cubs Closing
Up on Cardinals

BOSTON, Sept. 5. (CP)—The apparently unstoppable New York Yankees won another game yesterday, defeating the Boston Red Sox at Boston by a score of 9 to 6 to increase their margin of American League leadership to seventeen and a half games over the idle Cleveland Indians. In the only other American League game yesterday, Washington Senators, playing at the National Capital, defeated the cellar-dwelling Philadelphia Athletics and took exclusive possession of fourth place, moving out from a tie with Chicago White Sox.

In the only National League game, Chicago Cubs blanked Pittsburgh Pirates eight to nil and moved to within half a game of the second place St. Louis Cardinals who were idle.

Yesterday's scores:

Lady Anglers Attain Fame Taking Tuna

HALIFAX, Sept. 5. (CP)—Lady anglers are having their share of fame in Nova Scotia this season.

Mrs. Frances Low, of New York City, fishing off Jordan Ferry, N. S., started out modestly with a 600-pound tuna, only to smash that world's record for women within a few days by landing a 749-pounder.

Until landing her first tuna, Mrs. Low had never caught a fish larger than 20 pounds. Then she broke a world's record and gave a repeat performance that staggered veteran fishermen witnessing the sporting battle. Herman Grey, provincial government tuna promoter, was an interested spectator on both occasions.

No less noteworthy was the treat provided by Fanny R. Curtis, 13, who whipped a 251 blue fin tuna to a finish in just 22 minutes, off the Yarmouth, N.S., coast. The time was remarkable for a strong man, and for a girl weighing 103 pounds the feat was looked upon as a miracle by the party with her in Captain Edward Richard's boat.

Six youths of juvenile age, charged with creating a disturbance at the Exhibition Hall, were before Magistrate McClymont in city police court this morning, being dismissed with a warning. It was alleged that they endeavored to enter the building and refused to leave when the caretaker demanded that they do so.

The fur has been cached somewhere in the vicinity of Fort Nelson. The country leads itself to the caching and, unless some new clues are picked up, the chances of coming on the cache are considered as remote. The solution of the robbery looks easier than it is proving to be.

FINE FOR HARVEST

Expect Good Price For Timothy
Seed as Great Crop is Being
Cut in Valley

SMITHERS, Sept. 5.—Although harvesting operations in this district were halted by heavy rains last week-end, farmers had enjoyed a week of great weather, and they made the most of it. In many places the grain is being cut, especially on the higher land.

Timothy seed shows a bumper crop and there is the expectation that with ruined crops in numerous sections of Canada and the United States the price will rise to eight or ten cents per pound, a situation that places our farmers in the most favorable position they have been in for years.

From all districts come reports of good crops, and with two weeks of fine weather there should be great prosperity in farm communities.

Roots and vegetables also show a great crop of fine quality, and farmers should be able to keep up an uninterrupted supply for the market at Prince Rupert this year.
