The 1911 season of the Eastern league closed with double headers at Providence and Newark, the tail enders in the season standing. President Edward C. Barrows, in review of the season lately, said it might easily be classed as one of the most successful in the twenty-one years' history of this, the senior organization, of minor baseball leagues. Rochester, managed by John Hanzel for the third successive season, won the pennant. Its percentage was .645. Baltimore was second with .621. The other teams finished in the following order: Toronto, Buffalo, Montreal, Jersey City, Newark, Providence.

If the game is not killed in New York, the Easterners are likely to get a sight of all four of the negroes in New York City rings. Jeannette and Langford are old-timers there, and Johnson is casting longing eyes in the same direction and thinking seriously of the big money which is to be picked up in New York. Sam McVea has gone from Europe to Australia. In the latter country he expected to be on hand to get a chance to meet Johnson and Langford, who were also scheduled to go there under the direction of Hugh McIntosh. Both Langford and Johnson have changed their minds about the trip, however, and there is no doubt that McVea being on the ground helped them to make the change. When he gets word that the other two are not coming McVea will probably hurry back to the United States and will pretty well log up the way of any white man who wants to be a hope.

McVea is really a great fighter. He has fought Johnson three twenty-round fights, and only in the last one did the champion succeed in knocking his brother in color, and then not until the last minute of the last round. That was some four years ago before McVea began his splendid showing abroad and improved wonderfully. After the last bout with Johnson McVea beat about everybody in Europe and the best Sam Langford could do with him over there was to get a draw and the men who saw the fight say that Langford was really a beaten man.

The only other man besides Johnson to whip McVea was Joe Jeanette who turned the trick in a terrible fight. Previously McVea had beaten Jeanette in twenty rounds. Then they met again in a finish battle and after forty-eight rounds of terrific milling in which Jeanette was knocked down twenty-four times, he managed to put McVea away in the forty-ninth session, when both men were so exhausted they were barely able to stand up. Jeanette, as he showed in his recent battle with Langford, and in other encounters with the Tar Baby, is a glutton for punishment, and able to go on indefinitely. It was probably some of that stick-to-it quality which Jeanette instilled into Morris, for Joe had a hand in training the Oklahoma giant.

QUIET LITTLE WEDDING
Popular City Employee Weds Without Ostentation Last Night.

At the residence of Rev. McLeod on Sunday night Miss Shrubshell became the bride of Mr. J. E. Unwin of the City Engineer's department. Only the witnesses were present at the wedding, it being the desire of both bride and bridegroom to have the ceremony very quiet. The young couple left yesterday on their honeymoon trip to Vancouver, Victoria and Seattle. Their many friends throughout the city have the warmest of congratulations for them.

Brief and pathetic is the message conveyed to the police here by wire from Vancouver yesterday. It says simply "Find Jim Watson. Last in your city three weeks ago. Mother dying."

THE COSY CORNER

DEVOTED PRINCIPALLY TO THE INTERESTS OF WOMEN
This is a little section of the paper, which from day to day will be devoted to subjects of special interest to women. Any and all of the ladies of Prince Rupert are invited to contribute to its columns, and to take part in its discussions. Suggestions and criticisms are invited by the editor. The hope is expressed that "The Cosy Corner" will fill a social need.

Social Note
Mrs. L. W. Patmore will not receive on Wednesday, October 11.

THE BUSINESS GIRL

How Shall She Best Spend Her Winter Evenings
Now that the long fall and winter evenings are upon us, how shall the business girl employ her spare time? It is the girl who boards and with no home ties who asks this question, out of the loneliness of her heart.

Whatever you do, don't sit in the house and mope. You may be bodily tired, but it is surprising how weariness slips away with the awakening of a new interest, an all-absorbing vital interest in another human being who is making a struggle for existence. Therefore spend some time in "giving out" as well as "taking in."

Cultivate a love for music, cultivate it if you have it not. Attend some of the lectures given under the auspices of the many Young People's Societies. In that way make new interests and new friends. Be a worker, don't expect all advances to come from the other person.

Be enthusiastic? Whatever line you choose to go into with all your heart and it is wonderful the enjoyment you will get out of small things at a small cost. Leave business behind at 6 p.m. and do your part to recuperate your body and fit it for the next day's work by a well-spent evening in innocent pleasure or the pursuit of some study or work which will be a joy and not a task.

To the girl whose office work is heavy, and whose physical strength is not great, avoid all study or evening work and choose play. If you are completely worn out, cuddle up on your couch in your room with a good book and let all ambitions for evening study in literature and music go and store up your strength for tomorrow's task.

But among all your hobbies and your pleasures, save a half hour at least three times a week for good reading. As a parting word, let me say to the business girl: "Work while you work and play while you play," and the best time for a business girl to play is after 6 p.m. Let the office become a mere memory for the time being and relax! relax! relax! if you would fit yourself for tomorrow's task.

What is Your Color?
There never was a girl who didn't want to look her best as much of the time as she possibly could. Also there never was a girl who didn't look her best in certain colors.

Why not find out by experiment and study what particular shades are the most becoming to your coloring, and to stick reasonably close to them.

They say one should try to match one's eyes, and undoubtedly brown-eyed people usually look very well in brown, but they frequently look equally well in blue.

Try the whole range of colors before you decide. There may be some odd shade of lavender, some tawny brown, some peculiar blue that will make you look better than you would have dreamed you could, and it would be a pity for you to miss it.

THINGS GOOD TO EAT
Two Seasonable Dainties That Any Girl Can Make

Grape Juice.—Pick the grapes from the stems, wash thoroughly and put in a granite kettle. Heat until the juice flows, then strain through a fairly thick cloth. Add as much water as there is juice, and to every quart of the mixture add one cup of sugar. Bring to a boil, then bottle.

Peach Shortcakes.—Make a rich baking-powder crust and roll to one-quarter inch thickness. Cut with a cookie cutter into rounds, and butter one-half of these. Place the unbuttered ones on top. Bake them, then split open, and fill each one with fresh peaches, cut in thin slices and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Serve hot with whipped cream. The cream is nice if flavored with almond extract and filled with some chopped almonds.

MASSET NEWS

Interesting Items From the North end of Graham Island

(Special to the Daily News)
Masset, Oct. 8.—The Graham Island Lumber Company opened a lumber yard at New Masset. A large consignment of shingles arrived on the last steamer and a boat is expected with lumber.

Mr. Nash's survey party is encamped on the property formerly owned by Captain Francis; the work of surveying an addition to the townsite of Delkata is in progress.

The Indians are engaged in catching large numbers of coho salmon for their winter supply. It is asserted that Masset Inlet and the tributary streams are alive with fish.

On account of the change in the schedule of the steamer Prince John that vessel arrives at Masset and Naden harbor on Friday of each week.

It is reported that the Provincial Government will construct a lock-up and station a police officer on Graham Island.

Joseph Adams returned to Masset on the last steamer after undergoing a successful operation in the Prince Rupert General Hospital.

Four infant children of members of the Masset Band died recently and were interred in the local cemetery.

Twelve workmen are encamped at Langara Island, engaged in constructing a lighthouse. The structure will be the largest and best equipped on the North Pacific Coast.

The owners of gasoline launches are complaining of the lack of steamers for the carriage of freight. The Department of Marine and Fisheries will not permit the carriage of gasoline on the passenger steamer and it is impossible to obtain the necessary inflammable material for the large number of vessels depending on this fuel for the boats.
