PROFESSOR IS HEARD

Dr. Harold Hibbert, McGill University, is Rotary Speaker

In giving an address to the Prince Rupert Rotary Club yesterday on "Science in Industry," the speaker, Professor Harold Hibbert, of McGill University, remarked that really what the paper producers needed at the present time was financial rather than scientific advice, considering the predicament under which the industry found itself as a result of present day competitive methods. W. M. Blackstock presided and visitors included Dr. L. W. Kergin of Prince Rupert and Curt E. L. Ritter of Switzerland.

Professor Hibbert explained that of the wood used in manufacture of sulphite only forty-five percent went into use in the manufacture of paper. Part of their work at the university was to help the manufacturers to make use of the portion at present discarded. Also they dealt with the improvement of the quality of the product.

As a result of the work of research chemists it had now been found possible to manufacture vanilla flavoring from the waste material in pulp making. A factory had been erected and very soon ice cream and cake would be flavored with vanilla from trees.

Use of the salts produced when making craft paper comes also in the scope of investigations. Also as a result of the work has been the installing of plants to compress sawdust so that it might be sold in brick form for fuel. Vancouver is already using this fuel.

The question of conservation mentioned incidentally. The speaker said that, as wood became scarce in this part of the country, it might be possible to produce a hybrid tree crossed with the pine of the south which grew so fast that it produced a nine-inch tree in twelve years.

Various chemical processes were described, designed to indicate how nature produced a tree. They had been able to make synthetic cellulose from sugar.

Producing Gluten

Owing to the failure of the wheat market in Canada and the fact that the country had lost, possibly for all time, her dominant position as a wheat producer, impetus was given the chemist to discover ways of growing gluten. The failure of wheat growing led naturally to the growing of materials of higher value.

The speaker dealt incidentally with the work of the local experimental station in the perfecting of the processes for the manufacture of products from fish oil such as poultry foods and medicinal oils. This being a mining country where explosives were needed, it was important that fish oils be utilized in their manufacture. He expected the local experimental station to give a lead to the world along these lines.

Professor Hibbert spoke of the tendency for young men to take up industrial chemistry, especially with a view to utilization in the best way possible of the forest resources.
