Not Believed Seriously Damaged—Was Being Prepared To go to Halifax For Repairs and Refitting After Long Tie-up

HAMILTON, Bermuda, May 23: (CP)—Tugs straining at heavy hawsers yanked the Canadian National Steamships liner Prince David off coral reefs of Great Sound today. The liner ran aground while preparing to sail for Halifax after a lay-up of two years here. Trouble was at first experienced at the David's moorings. Then the steering gear was reported out of order. A strong wind drove her on the coral bottom before the tugs could assist. She is believed to be not seriously damaged. She is to be taken to Halifax as soon as possible for repairs and refitting.

WAS NEAR DISASTER

Ore Carrier's Cargo Shifts and Men Swept Overboard in Queen Charlotte Sound

Report has been received at divisional headquarters of the provincial police of a marine incident earlier in the week involving the Coastwise Steamship & Barge Co.'s freighter Amur and the provincial Police P.M.L. 9 as well as the Canadian Pacific freighter Nootka.

On Wednesday the P.M.L. sighted the Amur, Capt. J. McLeod, southbound from Anyox and Stewart to Tacoma with ore cargo, in Queen Charlotte Sound off Egg Island with a bad list to port. The ship had turned around with a view to heading into Ocean Falls to get the cargo straightened out when a big wave swept overboard a lifeboat containing three men. The Nootka later picked up the life boat and the three men, advising that she was taking them on to Vancouver.

The P.M.L. 9 stood by the Amur until she arrived at Ocean Falls and there were happily no serious results from what might have been a serious disaster.

Constable Vic Bond, formerly of Prince Rupert, is in charge of the P.M.L. 9.

EINSTOSS IS SUED

Former Sales Agent of Alaska Co-operative Defendant In $10,000 Action

KETCHIKAN, May 23:—Suit for $10,000 against Sigmund Einstoss, former sales agent of the Alaska Trollers' Co-operative Marketing Association, has been filed in Ketchikan court by A. H. Ziegler, attorney for the co-operative.

The suit charges Mr. Einstoss with taking more commission than agreed upon for selling the co-op's fish last year. Entitled to a five percent commission on fish sold last year, Mr. Einstoss is accused of taking an additional seven and a half percent which amounted to approximately $10,000. According to Mr. Ziegler, who is representing the co-op, Mr. Einstoss hired brokers in the east to sell the fish for him for seven and a half percent commission. He received the five percent to which he was originally entitled.

Sales agent for the co-op for two years, 1934-35, Mr. Einstoss is being sued only for his activities last year. The total amount of overcharged commission, according to Mr. Ziegler, comes to approximately $9,500. Attorney's fees bring the amount to $10,000.

The case, it is expected, will be tried during the next term of court in Ketchikan, probably next fall.
