EUROPEAN SITUATION

The European situation is very puzzling with the signatory nations of the Locarno and Versailles Treaties divided among themselves. Doubtless, Britain feels diffident about starting another world war and plunging her people into all the horrors of armed conflict for a cause which is hers only indirectly.

At the present time Germany is suffering from being in the hands of a dictator. Should anything happen to Hitler, it is possible that conditions in Germany provocative of war might change to such an extent that war may be unnecessary. Probably the real reason for military occupation of the Rhineland is to continue the solidarity of the Hitler regime.

A second reason for Britain refusing to become a party to a European war is that the present tension with Italy makes it undesirable that the country involve itself in differences with another country at the same time. Hitler must have banked on that when he moved his troops into the Rhineland. He probably assured himself that Britain was out of the picture and that France and Belgium would not move alone. Italy has her own problem to solve and the smaller countries do not much matter. Russia would not move without a better chance of winning than that indicated in the present line-up.

All this is not a pleasant condition to contemplate. While we feel fairly confident there will not be any general European war, yet it seems that the nations, including Britain, are playing a big game in which international strategy is an outstanding feature. No nation wants to fight if it can possibly be avoided. It is doubtful even if France wishes to fight, but that nation lives in constant fear of the Germans and military occupation of the Rhineland seems to them like a step toward another conflict in which she will be involved, possibly under less advantageous conditions than heretofore.

Maroons and Maple Leafs Again Tied For Leadership in Hockey League Standing

MONTREAL, March 11: (CP)—The Maroons played a scoreless draw with New York Rangers in Montreal last night but it was sufficient to put the Maroons into a tie for the leadership of the international section of the National Hockey League with the Toronto Maple Leafs who lost a close three to two decision to the Americans at New York. In the third scheduled National Hockey League game last night the Boston Bruins, playing at home, needed but one goal to defeat the Detroit Red Wings whose disastrous losing streak continues.

The league standings to date:

CAMERON IN FINAL

Had No Difficulty in Disposing Of Carey in Billiards Last Night

In the second game of the city billiard championship series last evening at the Canadian Legion Clubrooms, Neil Cameron, city champion, had little difficulty in winning from M. Carey, the final score being: Cameron, 502; M. Carey, 360. Cameron and Don Brown will meet in the final opening tomorrow night.

Cameron always had the game well in hand. Carey made his best showing with round the table cannons but he frequently left himself poor position for the next shot. His best breaks were a 23 and a 22. Cameron played three spectacular "draw" shots while his "long jennies" were played very confidently. His best break, however, was only a 31. He had a 22 and a 20.

The first block of 500 points in the final will be played on Thursday when Cameron and Brown meet. The second and concluding block of 500 will be played on Friday evening.

In practice games recently there has been very little to choose between these two players and if Brown just produces the same form, Cameron should be given a good run.

The series is arousing considerable interest and there was a large attendance of spectators last evening.

IRELAND DEFEATS WALES IN SOCCER

SPORT CHAT

Manitoba curlers retained the Macdonald Brier Cup, emblematic of Dominion championship, by winning the final at Toronto.

Cincinnati Reds defeated Philadelphia Athletics by a score of 5 to 2 at Miami for their second victory. It was the fourth straight win of the Reds in spring training exhibition games.

An unprecedented incident occurred at the Toronto Maple Leaf Gardens last Saturday night before the start of the National Hockey League game between Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens when a one-minute silence was observed by the assemblage of ten thousand puck fans in honor of the late Lou Marsh, highly popular and widely known Toronto sports editor. Marsh, who had died on Wednesday, was buried on Saturday afternoon.

Douglas Grant of Winnipeg, former champion, regained the Canadian men's singles badminton championship by defeating Dick Birch of Vancouver in the final at Winnipeg. Mrs. W. R. Walton jr. of Toronto, who was a finalist last year, captured the women's singles title by winning over Margaret Taylor of Kelowna, defending champion.

PIONEER BANQUET

About Eighty Persons in Attendance at Annual Affair Celebrating Anniversary of City's Incorporation

While the attendance might have not been all that was hoped for—about eighty persons being in attendance—the annual banquet and dance last night of the Prince Rupert Pioneers' Association, commemorating the twenty-sixth anniversary of the city's incorporation, was an enjoyable affair for all present. It took place in the Oddfellows' Hall.

After full justice had been done to an excellent spread of home cooking, for which Mrs. P. W. Anderson, Mrs. H. B. Eastman and Mrs. J. G. Viereck were responsible there was a program of speeches and impromptu music. Robert McKay was toastmaster and the speakers of the evening were City Commissioner W. J. Alder, proposing the toast to the city; Ex-Mayor M. M. Stephens, responding; A. J. Prudhomme, proposing the toast to the ladies; Miss E. M. Earle, who responded, and Rev. W. H. Pierce, who related some reminiscences of the very early days, particularly among the natives.

All speeches were of a reminiscent nature. The City Commissioner referred to the present financial standing of the city and expressed confidence in respect to the future, particularly from an industrial standpoint including the pulp mill.

During the evening tribute was paid to the pioneer dead.

The evening's program included vocal solos by Rol Judge and Gillis Couture, and recitations by Harry Astoria and Mrs. Angelin, the latter giving Kipling's poems very effectively. Community singing was also enjoyed including Prince Rupert's theme song "We're Here Because We're Here."

For the dancing which followed until 1 a.m., music was provided by Mrs. S. J. Black's Orchestra with Mr. McKay acting as master of ceremonies. Fred Riffou and J. E. Jack presided at the door.

"You can—and you should! Now that better times are with us there is no reason why you shouldn't smoke Ogden's, when it costs so little.

"When you roll a cigarette with Ogden's and touch a light to it, you're headed for a cooler, sweeter, mellow smoke. A better tobacco? Man, you said it! Smooth as a kitten's ear, because this tobacco is aged nature's way. Roll Ogden's with 'Chantecler' or 'Vogue' papers."
