knew little of the place and, when so large a vote for a public building was asked, one of the members asked how large a place was this Prince Rupert, what was its population? Mr. Hanson had replied pointing out that the city was the centre for a huge district and that in any case it was not so much the number people as the calibre of the people that counted. The vote was then passed without further discussion, everyone recognizing that the argument was unassailable.

Mr. Michaud said that now he had visited Prince Rupert he found that he was quite satisfied a public building of the character suggested should be ter of Fatheries Leaves-Catala erected. Canadian Prairies Drought-Stricken Swept by heat-laden winds, burned by scorching suns and untouched by rain, Canada's wheat growing prairies, often referred to as the "granary of the empire," have been turned this year into scorched wastes. Wheat and other grain crops have been irreparably damaged by continued drought which has lowered the possible crop from one-half to one hundred percent., although the largest yield in years had been forecast in early season surveys.
