ETHIOPIAN CASUALTIES ARE HEAVY

Italy Claims Fifteen Thousand Blacks Have Been Killed, Wounded

Defenders, However, Deny it and Declare That Invaders Have Suffered Equally Heavy Losses in Recent Heavy Fighting

ROME, Jan. 27: (CP)—Marshal Badoglio reported to the Italian government today that Ethiopian casualties in fighting on the southern front were ten thousand. This raises the Italian count of recent Ethiopian casualties to fifteen thousand killed or wounded. These figures are challenged by the Ethiopians themselves who claim their losses have not been nearly as extensive as the Italians say and that the Italians have suffered equally heavy casualties themselves. Heavy fighting continues both in the north and south of the war zone.

Rev. W. D. Grant Hollingworth Analyses Reasons For George V Winning Great Place In Hearts of People

"The sense of loss which is felt throughout the Empire is a very personal one," said Rev. W. D. Grant Hollingworth in his sermon during a special memorial service for the late King George V at First Presbyterian Church last night. "A King's crown came to him by inheritance. Praise came to him by custom. Even his place in history is assured without necessity for effort on his part. There was only one thing he had to earn by toil and merit—the heartfelt respect and affection of his people. The King earned nobly that noblest of rewards. It is the settled judgment of the people of the Empire that no King of England ever established a stronger claim upon the grateful and affectionate regard of his subjects. Throughout the twenty-five years of his reign he gathered around him a multitude whom no man can number, close to his person, close to his heart.

"Many factors entered into the situation to bring about this happy and auspicious condition. The first was the King's wisdom and vision. By his accessibility and adaptability a social evolution has taken place which might have been a staggering revolution. Over all that followed his accession to the throne—the surrender of the Lords, the gathering of the armies in Ireland, the Great War, the revolutions in Ireland, Egypt and India the general strike, the crisis of 1931, the coming of the National Government—the same quiet figure presided, representing in his person the traditions of a throne that goes back in majestic, if chequered, succession into the mists of antiquity, standing in a shaken world for dignity and faith in those enduring values which human society in its long history in Britain has learned to honor.

"Whatever we, as a people, may have suffered in the last twenty-five years was not due to his mis-handling. On the contrary, in such sufferings as have overtaken his people, he bore his full share.

"With unobtrusiveness, with perfect understanding, he met the requirements of new occasions. With profound knowledge and understanding of his people, his influence was more far-reaching than any statesman in our vast Empire.

AND NOW THE DUKE IS KING OF POLAND

Dame rumor does herself proud when it comes to spreading gossip about the Duke of Kent. First, when he married Princess Marina of Greece, he was scheduled to become king of that troubled nation. Now, European reports say that, since there is a new monarchist movement in Poland since death of Pilsudski, Prince George is favored as logical candidate for the throne. The ancient palace of kings in Warsaw, and the Duke are shown above.
