"DEI GRATIA" IS LEFT OFF

Canadian Coinage This Year is Short of the Ancient Phrase—The Mint's Error.

(Canadian Press Despatch) Ottawa, Oct. 21.—A great deal of comment has been created by the disappearance of the words "Dei Gratia" from the Canadian coinage this year. This applies to the silver ones only. Next year's coin will have the stately and ancient motto restored. The fault for the omission lies with the British mint authorities. The dies were prepared in England and there the mistake was made.

The victim is Charlie Guptill, purser of the Alaska Steamship Company, and the motive for the crime was evidently robbery as the purser was believed to have upwards of $3000 on him, the amount represented by bookings for the steamer Dolphin belonging to his company.

PRINCESS ROYAL GOES SOUTH WITH FULL LIST OF YUKON OLD-TIMERS

Frank Manley, George De Lion and Two Hundred Other Well Known Yukoners Going Out for the Winter---A Merry Scene on the Wharf This Morning

To the many old time Klondikers in Prince Rupert today, the passenger list of the C. P. R. Princess Royal this morning was of particular interest. Lining the steamer's side as she lay at the wharf were hundreds of passengers leaving the Yukon for the season, and amongst them old timers here counted many familiar faces. Millionaire Frank One conspicuous figure on board was that of Frank Manley, the man who ran the Manley Hot Springs Hotel at Fairbanks during the gold days, and one of the best known of the men north now. He has the reputation of being worth millions. He reached the Yukon from Mexico where he had cleared himself effectually of a charge of murder laid against him. He is as well known in Mexico as in the Yukon. A Good Loser Running the Hot Springs looked to be a profitable business, but Frank lost $200,000 on that venture. However, he grew a garden of vegetables and flowers there that was the envy of the whole North. He had a lay-out of lavish luxury with swimming pools, and every appurtenance in keeping. After leaving Fairbanks he went to the Iditarod, and has just pulled out from there with the reputation of having made "a pot of money." Frank hailed his friends here with warm good cheer today. Peter Black of the Central Hotel, Jarvis McLeod of the Customs Department, Max Heilbronner, J. H. Rogers of the Steamship Agency, were hailed by him. Real "Old Timers" Other prominent old time mining men on the Royal were Bill Scouse, once partner with Pete Black on "15 Eldorado," an unassuming many now worth many thousands of dollars. His brother Tom was there too, also a miner of '97. Doc Raimor was there from Fairbanks, and Charlie Burchler, "the sunbeam purser" of the Northern Navigation Company, Hollis Loomney, Bill Harding, Nick Torella, Pilot Schafer of the White Pass Company, Robert Milvane of the Russell King Outfit, Milvane and McLaren, Commodore Barker of the Northern Navigation Company Mrs. Charlie Vifquin, on her way to New York, Horace McKay, Fishery Inspector, and amongst many others last mentioned but not least George De Lion, famous in the days of the Villa De Lion across the Yukon where the "Marjorie" took her crowds of passengers.

AN UNDERTAKER'S BLUNDER PUT END TO THE FUNERAL

Discovered That the Urn a Kingston Family Were Burying, Was Labelled With the Name of Another Person—Funeral Was Called Off

(Canadian Press Despatch) Kingston, Ont., Oct. 21st.—A painful sensation has been caused here by what is believed to be an undertaker's blunder. Just prior to the burial of the cremated remains of the late David W. Trotter of Long Beach, Cal., at the local cemetery, it was discovered that the casket containing the ashes bore the label of Mrs. Ophelia Parrington, aged 82. It is believed that the caskets of two different persons became mixed, each going to wrong destinations. The obsequies were stopped until the Long Beach undertaker can be communicated with. OUR NEW FEDERAL MEMBER SAYS HE WILL LOOK AFTER RUPERT

Mr. H. S. Clements Given an Enthusiastic Reception at the Conservative Smoker Last Night---Optimistic Prophecies Were Made About Canada's Future

With the McIntyre Hall about two-thirds full of staunch Conservatives and other citizens interested Alderman Clayton opened the smoker held last night to welcome Mr. Clements, the newly elected member for Comox-Atlin. "It was desirable that before he went to Ottawa Mr. Clements should get to know the faces of his supporters and be able also call them each and all by name," said the Chairman amid applause. "Therefore this smoker." The speaker went on terms of flowery eloquence to describe the resources of Prince Rupert particularly touching on the "hardy fisherman who after casting his net under the shimmering starlight draws forth in the daytime the glittering, silver-sided spoil of the mighty deep." (Cheers). Clements Can Cook Mayor Manson opened his address with amusing references to the launch trip taken by himself and Mr. Clements to Bella Coola—when Mr. Clements had proved able "to cook for the bunch." The Mayor had greatly enjoyed many meals cooked thus by Mr. Clements, though he had to wash the dishes afterwards. (Laughter). Protection Plan Referring to the recent contest the Mayor remarked that the victory achieved under Mr. Borden was a most significant one. It brought Canada in line with the plans of the great leader in Britain—Joseph Chamberlain—(Cheers). It would lead to Canada and the British colonies coming in line with a system of protection. (Cheers). The old country would appreciate the advantage of the great scheme, and it would soon be realised. (Cheers). A pianoforte selection followed Mr. Manson's address during which refreshments were served. "Mr. Speaker's" Brother Mr. Sproule, brother of the newly appointed Speaker of the House, was present and on the call of the chairman took the platform. He expressed his pleasure in addressing an audience in the great constituency of Comox-Atlin. He had seen much of the district while travelling with the new member, and "the estimable gentleman whom the citizens had selected to rule the coming city of Prince Rupert." "Salt of the Earth" He told how the hearts of the Conservatives down below had been cheered by the results coming in from the far away districts of Comox-Atlin—surely the salt of the earth was there. (Cheers from the grains of said salt in the hall). Be in His Bonnet An amusing comic song and recitation followed by Mr. Martin and then the chairman called on Dr. Traynor, of Kitselas, to take the platform. He congratulated Mr. Clement on this victory saying that he never should forget how he felt when he heard the results at Kitselas. Farmyard Interlude Mr. J. G. Weston gave some farmyard imitations including how the Conservatives crowed on Election Day and after the results were out. Mr. Weston's imitation of catching a bee was exceptionally good. He caught the insect in Alderman Clayton's bonnet. Several amusing songs followed, by Mr. Martin and other popular singers, then after a prelude in the shape of a selection on the bagpipes Mr. Clements was introduced by the chairman. The New M. P. Mr. Clements who was received with enthusiasm said he was pleased to see all, both Liberal and Conservative. He was proud as a Canadian that not a single elector he had met in Comox-Atlin had been desirous to sell his franchise. Didn't Like Rupert Once He admitted that when he first came to Prince Rupert in the early days he looked at the rock and timber about and did not see how a city ever could be made here. Now having seen something of the interior resources of the district, he was assured of Prince Rupert's prosperity. Prince Rupert must become a very great city indeed, and during his term at Ottawa he would while not neglecting every other portion of Comox-Atlin—make a point always of advancing the interests of Prince Rupert. He did not feel sore at the adverse vote he met in Prince Rupert but realised that his workers here had found forces against them that they had not anticipated. Referring to Premier R. L. Borden, he said: "There is no one man more capable of leading the party in power in the Dominion of Canada than R. L. Borden." He would ever have the best interests of the Dominion at heart. Without wishing to say anything to offend any Liberal he did not see how any Liberal could possibly have supported the reciprocity pact. He thought any Liberals supporting that pact must have voted simply for party reasons. Wants the Liberals If Liberals would now line up with the party in power they would find Canada better governed than it had been for fifteen years. Gov't. and G. T. P. He belittled the Liberal Government saying that the Grand Trunk Pacific was the only great enterprise ever entered on by the Liberal Government in the interests of Canada. The fortunes of Prince Rupert depended upon the G. T. P. and the Conservative party were not opposed to the
