Two Japanese Believed to Have Lost Their Lives in Zenardi Rapids on Sunday

Two Japanese fishermen belonging to Sunnyside Cannery are believed to have lost their lives last Sunday in treacherous Zenardi Rapids where the Canadian National Railways line crosses from Kaien Island to the mainland near Prince Rupert. The provincial police boat P. M. L. 8 went out this morning to investigate the possibility of a double drowning in the upsetting of a small skiff.

The two Japanese, whose names are so far not available at district headquarters of the provincial police here, started from Sunnyside cannery for Port Edward in a gasboat on Saturday. On Sunday they left Port Edward in a skiff for Wolf Creek to reach which it was necessary for them to pass under the railway bridge and through the dangerous tidal fall of Zenardi Rapids. They were supposed to return to Port Edward Sunday night but they have not been seen. The sighting of an overturned skiff in the neighborhood has given rise to the fear that the pair may have been drowned. Their gas boat is still at Port Edward.
