> reading. That Kitimat was at first intended to be the terminus is attested to by C. E. Moore who with Mrs. Moore is today in the city on one of his periodical visits. He has lived in the valley for many years and at one time had high hope of it being the railway terminus. At that time there was considerbut today there are only three families outside of the Indian village. Most of the land is under timber reserve. Building of the line to that point was actually commenced but suddenly stopped and of the never again resumed.

15c Mr. Moore has a ranch at Kiti-mat, on the banks of the river, but 28c on the ground, usually from November to April. This year the spring freshet came dangerously near their home, surrounding it Try a classified. and isolating them temporarily NALLEY'S POTATO CHIPS 10C When the waters receded it was from the rest of the community. found that their garden had been covered many feet with silt. So 10C uncomfortable did the flood make them that they have decided to 190 build farther from the river.

Naturally Mr. Moore has a num-15C ber of stories to tell of life in the backwoods. One of these is about a brown bear that he met on the mountain side when he was prospecting. When the bear saw him it did not run away as is customary, even though Mr. Moore not looking for an encounter. However, he stood ready to strike if the bear attacked him. Instead of doing this the bear ran right up to him and put its head down much like a dog will sometimes do. Evidently he was a friendly bear and not afraid. The man could easily have split the animal's skull but something stayed his hand and instead he just remarked. "Oh get away". The bear, as if it knew what was said, turned and ran

Mr. Moore says he knows no one will believe the story but he de. clares it was true. He thinks the bear must have been at some time in captivity or else as a cub is must have been around a camp and been fed. Usually the bear stands up to fight but this one showed no signs of hostility. Mr. Moore says he was glad he did not strike the creature. Mr. and Mrs Moore are here with Rudolph Braun on the la!ter's boat.

In recognition of his services, directors of Preston North End, English first league football club, have conferred life membership on Vice-Chairman J. I. Taylor.

THEIR ASSETS-Health, a few securities, and hope for the future.

THEIR PROBLEM-To raise money for a temporary need, and still retain their securities. THEIR SOLUTION-They talk it over with their banker, arrange to borrow against their securities. Within a reasonable time they pay off their loan (for they are thrifty), and will get back their securities intact.

Thus the firm of Mr. and Mrs. have established a line of credit. Perhaps even more important, they have discovered their local bank manager is more than a banker-he is their friendly counsellor too.
