NEW YORK, Dec. 22: (AP)—Elizabeth, the new Queen, is a prime favorite of all classes both in the

FINE WOMAN

QUEEN ELIZABETH

United Kingdom and in the Dominions beyond the seas.

The people have always loved "the little Duchess" because she is so sweet and friendly and wholly unassuming—as unspoiled and lovely as the heather blossoms from her own home highlands of Scotland. They sometimes called her "the smiling Duchess," too, for she has a winsome smile—a real smile of warmth that comes from the heart—for everybody, whether they be humble folk or great personages.

Elizabeth comes from a long line of aristocracy herself, but her attitude towards life has given the impression that she had stowed away in her pretty head the thought that if a member of the nobility cut his finger he would bleed red blood, just like any ordinary mortal, and not the blue blood one might expect from delving into books about the peerage. She never has put on any airs, and that gets her a long way with the people.

Her husband, now the King, always has been like that, too. One of the achievements he is proud of is his sponsorship of a boys' camp, in which boys of all classes are thrown together and made to like it. As Duke he never was happier than when in a camp outfit, mixing with these youngsters.

Throughout their married life of 13 years the Duchess has worked with her husband among the poor in such labors of love. They have made a great pair and have devoted much time to such altruistic enterprises.

Charming and Sensible

In her private home life Elizabeth, who is a charming and gracious figure in a drawing room, has presented a picture of a good Scottish housewife, with all the common sense of her race. One suspects she got a deal of inspiration from her royal mother-in-law, Queen Mary, who is one of the best housekeepers in England, even if she has lived in palaces. Queen Mary always has been ex-
