STEWART

Rev. Evan Baker of Anyox was here the latter part of last week and conducted services at Stewart, Premier and Big Missouri.

The death occurred last Monday of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Rose of Premier. The funeral took place on Tuesday in Stewart.

Mrs. Lance Potterton and family left last Thursday for Ocean Falls, Provincial Comptroller Potterton having been transferred to that point.

Mrs. P. S. Jack is now much improved following a recent serious illness.

The village commissioners have authorized the clerk to make arrangements with the Northern British Columbia Power Co. for extra street illumination during the Christmas holiday season. There will be festoons of colored lights on Fifth Street.

PRINCE GEORGE

In the course of his crusade to the Pacific Coast to agitate for the provision of a Pacific Coast outlet for the Peace River country, Page Rideout of Peace River spent a couple of days in Prince George at the first of last week.

SMITHERS

The annual Catholic bazaar was held in Smithers on Saturday afternoon and proved to be a well patronized and highly successful affair.

Although there was no trouble in the district immediately adjacent to Smithers, alternate cold and mild weather causing numerous creeks to freeze and back up resulted in considerable road troubles in the Bulkley and Nechako Valleys during the past week. The water running over the roads made them impassable for traffic at some points.

The Quick District Women's Institute held a very successful sale of work and bean supper recently. In raffles Mrs. J. S. Gray of Smithers won a quilt and R. Macgregor of Quick a sweater.

Conductor J. E. Paschal represented the Smithers district last Thursday at the unveiling in Prince Rupert of the Sir Henry Thornton memorial plaque.

Special Christmas services were held Sunday in the Smithers United Church with Rev. W. B. McIntosh officiating. The congregations were large.

Silver foxes appear to be a drug on the local fur market this winter with cross foxes bringing low prices of less than $20 per pelt. Weasels are in demand but the catch is composed of rather small skins.

Reports from the Hazelton Hospital are to the effect that Indian Agent G. C. Mortimer, who has been seriously ill, continues to make favorable progress toward recovery.

Smithers observed the birthday of King George VI by closing last Monday.

NEW HAZELTON

In the Hazelton Community Hall the schools of Hazelton held the annual concert and community Christmas tree. There was a large attendance of children and parents alike.

Rev. W. D. Grant Hollingworth was a visitor in Hazelton at the first of last week in connection with his Presbyterian Church organization work.

Queen is Favorite

ceptionally fond of Elizabeth, and the two have been together much. The Queen Mother has, through the years, imparted a wealth of knowledge to the younger woman.

Quite apart from official duties, Elizabeth has seen the ever efficient Queen take full charge of such things as the spring house-cleaning in Buckingham Palace. Menus have gone to the royal chefs either in Queen Mary's own handwriting, or with her alterations noted on something the chefs had suggested. She always has run her own house.

All these things and many more Elizabeth has watched and thrifflily stowed away for future reference, or adapted to her own smaller needs. She is said to have been an apt pupil and should make a fine manager for the great households she now will have under her supervision.

But the most beautiful gem in Elizabeth's crown in her motherhood. She has been a wonderful mother to her two little Princesses—Elizabeth, who is now 10 and is next in line to the throne, and little Margaret Rose, aged six. She has part of her reward in knowing that these two lassies are the most beloved small folk in Britain.

One thing the Duchess could not conceal, however. She often has effaced herself in public so that her little Elizabeth could take the limelight. The mother was building a future Queen, irrespective of what might happen to herself. And a proud and happy smile always lighted the Duchess' face when crowds showed their love for the Princess.
