THE NEW KING

The new King who, as Prince of Wales, had been a general favorite throughout the world, assumes the throne under most auspicious conditions. In all parts of the Empire the constitutional monarchy is looked upon as the best suited form of government for the present needs of the people. There has of recent years grown up between the people and the King a bond of union that is most striking. The new King has an opportunity to further cement that bond in a manner that will make it lasting. The people; of Canada will be a unit in giving their full and complete allegiance to the new head of their government.
