Palatial Pleasure Craft for Pacific Coast Millionaire

(Canadian Press Despatch) Seattle, Nov. 2.-H. J. Jenkins, a millionaire lumber land-owner of Vancouver, B. C., is bringing to the coast COMPANY OF B. C., Ltd couver, B. C., is bringing to the coast a new yacht, said to be the finest to be owned on the Pacific. Mr. Jenkins recently went to New York after cleaning up more than a million on timber land deals. There he met a prominent New Yorke broker who had just returned from Europe on his private yacht. While the broker had been enjoying a vacation Wall street had been doing things to his private stocks and he found himself a poorer but wise man.

"I'll give you $100,000 for your yacht, said Mr. Jenkins

"Done with you," cried the broker. The deal was closed and the yacht is now on her way around the Horn. The cost of making the cruise is estimated at complain, have been rationally explained. If an aeroplane is going against the wind with small speed, relatively to the earth, and then suddenly runs into a current which crosses its path or into a quiet section of the atmosphere its speed is insufficient to uphold it and it drops and if the motor power and propulsion have not strong enough mentum or if the aeroplane is too near the earth, the drop is likely to prove fatal. The explanation accounts for the accidents occurring when the aviator volplanes to earth with the motor power shut off and dives into unexpected currents near the earth's surface caused by hills, trees or buildings.
