THE COSY CORNER

DEVOTED PRINCIPALLY TO THE INTERESTS OF WOMEN

This is a little section of the paper, which from day to day will be devoted to subjects of special interest to women. Any and all of the ladies of Prince Rupert are invited to contribute to its columns, and to take part in its discussions. Suggestions and criticisms are invited by the editor. The hope is expressed that "The Cosy Corner" will fill a social need.

FASHION'S FRIVOLS.

Latest Fads for the Fair Sex From the Centres of Good Dressing.

Suit skirts seen at the best modistes have raised waitlines and are still quite narrow.

Heels on shoes for the coming winter, especially on pumps, are decidedly lower.

Venise lace, especially in the heavy raised point lace, is used on many autumn gowns.

Embroidered voile, hand worked in different color, is to be a popular fabric for the winter.

Fur hats trimmed with feathers and flowers will be worn after the cold weather comes.

The French modistes are using lightweight laces, malines, shadow laces and Chantilly on their best costumes.

Complexion veils of white—orange tinted maline—are affected by women who give careful thought to their accessories.

From Parisian milliners come a number of small hats, though the large picture hat is too becoming to be cast entirely aside.

RECIPES

ger root cut and scraped in thin slices. Let the sugar dissolve before adding fruit. Cut the peel of lemons in long, thin slices. Let cook slowly for an hour, then put in jars.

Peach Pudding
Peel and stone six large, ripe peaches, fill the centres with maraschino cherries. Put on the ice to get cold. Make a custard of 1 cup of milk, 1-4 cup sugar, yolks of 3 eggs, and a small piece of butter. When cold, flavor with almond. Line a dish with lady fingers or slices of sponge cake, put in the peaches, then the custard. Beat the whites of the eggs stiff and add 1-2 cup cream whipped stiff. Sweeten and flavor. Serve cold.

Pepper Sandwich.
This is always a favorite with those who prefer dainties that are rather pungent. Chop a pepper fine, removing all the seeds; place in a sauce pan with a tablespoonful of butter and allow it to heat without browning. Stir briskly; add a little salt and remove from the fire. When quite cold spread between thin slices of bread, adding a little grated cheese before putting the slices together.

ADVANTAGES OF A SMALL KITCHEN
Essence of Household Economy Compressed Into a Very Small Space.

Tales brought to us from "down east" always tell of the great kitchen with its browned beams, its fire place, "with half a cord of wood in" and its floor white with much scribbling. In those good old times the large kitchen was taken as a matter of course, but today the problem of the small versus the large kitchen is one which often disturbs the thoughtful housewife. After all the advantages of a large kitchen are more picturesque and apparent than real. They consist in airiness and plenty of elbow room, in being able to store a great quantity of pots and pans in them, and in serving other useful purposes when the rest of the house may have succumbed to an attack of house cleaning and is unfit for human habitation. The advantages of the small kitchen, on the other hand, are more real than apparent to the eye. The small kitchen is more compact, and tends towards encouraging economy in many ways of real value to the thrifty housekeeper.

In the first place, it discourages extravagance in acquiring specious and unnecessary culinary utensils, which appeal rather to the eye and to the imagination than to actual needs and practical experience.

In the second place, the small kitchen saves a great deal of time in enabling everything to be placed within easy reach of the hands and so saving much walking about. Moreover, the small kitchen impresses tidiness and simplicity in its upkeep.

Large kitchens, having so much room to spare, it is almost impossible to keep things conscientiously in their proper place for long. The user of the small kitchen is obliged to do for want of space. Hence the small kitchen may be said to provide a post-graduate course in household economy, for as brevity is the soul of wit so is the small kitchen the sense of household economy.

RECIPE EXCHANGE
Clever Idea by Which Women Amused Themselves and Helped One Another.

Here's what some Rochester women did: Each cooked the very best dish she knew how to prepare—her favorite, the one thing above all others in the cooking line she was proudest of.

Then she carefully wrote out the recipe and took it with a large plate or pan of the aforesaid sample of her highest art to the schoolhouse.

There she met all the other women of the neighborhood, each with a plate or pan, and a recipe. Also the men of the neighborhood were there. The various dishes and pans were arranged on a long table. The recipes were carefully copied on black-board. Food and recipes were numbered to correspond.

Then everybody got busy sampling the different articles. Whenever anyone found a dish both unfamiliar and palatable, he or she would note its number and go to the board for the corresponding recipe.

It was great fun—and at the same time of great practical value to the folks of the community. For this was brought out the very cream of the culinary wisdom of the neighborhood, making it easy for each housewife to get the new ideas that particularly appealed to her.

That's what the school social centre "clubs of Rochester call a "Recipe Exchange."
