FRENCH CANADA'S POSITION

Evidently there is strong irritation in Quebec over what they consider the subordinate position of French Canadians, industrially and religiously. According to an article in McLean's Magazine, this is at the bottom of the political mix-up in Quebec province. According to that article some of the French Canadians would like to have a separate Dominion for Quebec, others want a more autonomous province and others again are opposed to the Taschereau government.

What the magazine article fails to mention is that the English speaking section of Quebec is just as much opposed to the Taschereau administration as is the French and this will show itself in the vote which is to be taken at the coming election. However, the French predominate politically and it is natural that racial prejudices are brought into play at a time when political feeling runs high.

DOMINION DANGERS

There are all sorts of sectional grievances in Canada today. French Canada is a little restive over its position politically, economically and religiously. Western Canada has economic grievances and so has the far east, claiming that industrialism is protected and that the central provinces benefit at the expense of both west and east. Vancouver Island considers itself neglected by the rest of British Columbia and there have also been movements in Northern and Central British Columbia looking to the formation of a separate province. All these movements are based on grievances or fancied grievances. If the Dominion is to become a real nation all grounds for grievances must be removed or information provided showing that the grievances do not exist in fact but only in fancy. Full investigation and discussion will tend to remove the causes of friction and thus weld the nation into one political whole.

The present government at Ottawa is doing what it can to remove friction as between French and English interests. French interests in the cabinet are strong but the economic troubles remain untouched so far. British Columbia's premier has been carrying on a campaign of education looking to the removal of some of the causes of irritation. He has undoubtedly been able to impress the federal politicians and it will remain to be seen what the final outcome will be. Adjustments will have to be made from time to time in the economic set-up of the Canadian federation and this seems like a good time to begin to remove grievances.

Man in the Moon

Good Day! Have you taken your full share of the beautiful sunshine that has been going to waste here lately.

Jake says he cannot enjoy this wonderful weather because of the thought that it is likely to rain on Dominion Day.

John: "The bank has returned that check."
Wife: "Isn't that splendid. What shall we buy with it this time?"

They were discussing the education of their boy who had been attending King Edward High School. "What is he going to be when he gets through school?" the first inquired. "I fear he will be an octogenarian," replied the other.

Dogs cannot talk but you usually know what they mean. It's clear they are not politicians.

ILLEGAL BIRTHS

"There are, of course, the predisposing individual factors of deficient mental endowment, moral sense and others which will always exercise the most direct influence in problems of this nature, but these are aggravated, and other groups affected by contributing social causes as well," she pointed out.

"This fact brings its challenge, as do the unsatisfactory laws still prevailing in three provinces and the indifferent provisions for administration in others," Miss Whittton says. "The question of adequate guardianship for those children whose mothers retain their custody and of aids in maintenance for mothers who can partially support their children calls urgently for more examination and thought than it is receiving."
