Brotherhood of Service

The British Empire should be a brotherhood of service to the world. It must be that if it is to succeed permanently. The idea of sitting back and letting the rest of the world go its own way, fight its own battles and not caring what happens is the wrong idea. If ever there is to be a world union in which wars will cease it has to come about by all taking an active interest. The British Empire should be the greatest factor in the world for peace.

There was a time when all the states of India were at war with each other. There was ceaseless warring and bickering and absolutely no stability. The British people stepped in and set them on the road to peace. Since the British have been in control there has been no war of any importance and the people of the country have been educated and taught to carry on their own affairs. That is what will happen some day in Europe, two or three strong countries will agree to control those that want to fight and cause turmoil.

Young Canadians are a little inclined to draw back from imperial affairs and to think that they will be all right any way no matter what Europe may do. This is a mistaken notion. The world is so small today that every nation is more or less dependent upon the other. Once we all feel that, we have made a great forward movement toward world peace.

The British Empire is just beginning its work. It is held together by ties of sentiment and self-interest but also it should be held together by ideas of world service. Acting in conjunction with the United States, it has wonderful power and each year will see that power increase. People of non-British nations that have thrown in their lot with Canadians will feel more and more that they are part of a great world force, stronger than any other human force that exists and it will be a force for peace, justice and right. The disintegration of the Empire would be a calamity to the world.

Canadians, we suggest, may well realize their destiny as a strong factor in Empire affairs and through the Empire in world affairs. It is a great destiny and one of which to be proud.

WOMEN AT CROWNING

Coming Ceremony Will Reflect
Progress of Gentler Sex in Affairs of British Empire

LONDON, April 24: (CP) — Beautifully-gowned women may be out-numbered by brilliantly-uniformed men in the great congregation in Westminster Abbey on Coronation Day. But among those in the scintillating crimson, scarlet and blue, will be women whose presence emphasizes recent historical development and the changing status of women in a changing world.

Canadian, Australian and South African-born women who have married into the peerage, will sit with those whose lineage dates back to the Norman conquest. Among peeresses of Canadian birth are the Countess of Minto and Countess of Haddington, daughters of G. W. Cook of Montreal; Lady Harding, formerly Margot Fleming of Ottawa; the Marchioness of Donegal, who was Violet Twining of Halifax; Lady de Blaquiere, the French-Canadian; Lady Conleton, sister of the present Lord Strathcona and the two Lady Shaughnessys.

For the first time in British history women may attend the Coronation as members of parliament. A cross-section of all parties, Viscountess Astor, Eleanor Rathbone, Megan Lloyd George, Irene Ward, Florence Horbrugh, Ellen Wilkinson and Mrs. H. B. Tate, as elected representatives of the people, may claim their privilege of seeing the King receive his crown. Incidentally, he will be crowned in the chair which the suffragettes tried to destroy with a bomb shortly after the last Coronation in 1911.

Notable Women

Two women appear on the long list of representatives of British possessions and foreign countries and they, too, may be said to represent romance of history and progress.

The Most Noble, Mary Seiberras D'Amico Inguarnez, Baroness of Diar-el-Biet, Bukana and Castel Cicciano, is the senior member of the Maltese nobility and of the three Maltese representatives. About 70 years of age, she is the 20th baroness of this title created in 1350. Small in stature and a famous hostess, she entertained King Edward VIII when he visited Malta. Her title comes from the Garden of Diar-el-Biet given her ancestor by Louis of Arragon, Serene King of Sicily in 1350. The Barony of Castel Cicciano was gained by profitable mediaeval marriages.

Another woman representative, the Ranees of Sarawak, was born in England of English parents and is now spending her life in London while her son reigns as Rajah over his domain, half the island of Borneo.

The title has a strange history. Early in the 19th century, the native Rajah of Sarawak found his people were getting too much for him, so he called on an Englishman to help him out. In gratitude he left the Englishman the kingdom when he died.

The late Charles Brooke, second Rajah of Sarawak, was the nephew and heir of the adventurous Englishman. The present Ranees is his wife, who writes, is musical and lives in London. Her son, now Rajah who succeeded in 1917, is famous for fighting headhunters.
