Bernice Palmer says

Why can't typing be done to music as so many other things are these days? Have you ever tried to think out any really serious subject to the tune of half a dozen machines, each on a different note and tuned to a different tempo? Well I have, and right here and now I register my disapproval. They seem to have the same effect on me as harmonizing has on my small daughter. Listening to a program on the radio the other night, her daddy and I were quite pleased to note the rapt expression on our small daughter's face. At last, we thought, she was beginning to absorb some of the finer points of music we had been so diligently trying to instil in her young soul. Quite religiously we had sat through the "better" programs for a long time now. After all now is the time to mold the mind and develop that love of the masters. Something had to be done to offset the influence of jazzor so we thought.

The harmonizing was particularly beautiful. Lights and shadows flashed across her face, and her small hands were clenched at her sides and her breath year ago. The grand total of all were taking consolation from the against 8,244,200 pounds in 1936.

Finally, unable to stand the at a good level. The top bid of the strain any longer, she jumped to week for Canadian fish was 9.2c her feet. "Mother," she said, and 6c paid the Capella and F.G.W. same song?"
