

WHIFFLETS From the Waterfront

The Japanese training ship Kaiwo Maru, visit of which is being looked forward to with keen interest not only by the local Japanese community but by the public generally, is due to arrive on Friday of this week but there is understood to be a possibility that the vessel may be in on Thursday. Her visit will extend until July 3 and there will be a considerable exchange of hospitality and courtesies.

Officers of the wardroom mess of the local unit of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve entertained officers of the visiting United States destroyers Fox and Brooks Saturday afternoon. The compliment was returned aboard the two American warcraft Sunday afternoon.

The well known American halibut schooner Superior left Seattle on Saturday for Port San Juan, Alaska, where she will engage in herring fishing until November for the San Juan Fishing & Packing Co.

Four halibut vessels sold catches totaling 92,500 pounds at Seattle yesterday as follows: Ilene, 35,000, 87¢ and 8¢; Coolidge, 28,000, Whiz, 91¢ and 8¢; Gony, 12,000, Booth, 10¢ and 8¢; Ionic, 17,500, Washington, 10¢ and 8¢.

Two halibut boats—Kamchatka and Antler—sold catches at Vancouver yesterday, prices ranging from 7¢ to 7.7¢.

Union steamer Catala, Capt. James Findlay, arrived in port at 2:15 this afternoon from Stewart, Anyox and other northern points and sailed at 2:45 p.m. for Vancouver and waypoints.

Tonight's train, due from the east at 10:45, was reported this morning to be on time.

- "Long Long Ago," Agnes Collins.
- "A Little Waltz," David Jones.
- "Little Study," Viola May Prendergast.
- "Olive's Waltz," Bruce Carter.
- "Capriccio," Forbes Lee.
- "Song of the Drum," Pat Carson.
- "Allegretto," Gwendy Jenner.
- "Lilac Fairy," Ruth Walton.
- "Minuet," Kenneth Brocklesby.
- "Cat and the Fiddle," Audrey Hunter.
- "Romance in F," Patricia Brocklesby.
- "Jolly Boys," George Hankinson.
- "Merry Peasant," Margaret Martinussen.
- "Lady Catherine," Margaret Carr.
- "Schottische," Patricia Love.
- "Soldier's Chorus," Rosemarie Kilpatrick.
- "Curious Story," Lawrence Hankinson.
- "Intranta," Dorothy Kergin.
- "Cradle Song," Margaret Lamb.
- "Little Fairy March," Gordon Adams.
- "Marche Militaire," Gordon Dell.
- "The Sparrow," Margaret Morin.
- "Sea Song," Eddie Ciccone.
- "Water Lilies," Jean Smith.
- "Fisherman's Daughter," Norma Currie.
- "March in C," Robert Bartlett.
- "Minuet in F," Peggy Large.
- "Pinks," Hemsby King.
- "Chasing Squirrels," Audrey Harworth.
- "The Clock," Jean McAfee.

About midway through the program of piano solos, there was a selection by a novelty rhythm band conducted by Bruce Carter and with Pat Brocklesby, Kenneth Brocklesby, Mary Dybhavn, Viola May Prendergast and Forbes Lee as the players.

The program opened with "O Canada" and closed with "God Save the King." Miss Annie B. Peterson was announcer.

Marketing Appeal Hearing Thursday

VICTORIA, June 22: (CP)—The British Columbia government yesterday announced that June 25 had been set as the date for the closing of the poll of halibut fishermen to determine the fate of a scheme to regulate the marketing of halibut under the provincial Natural Products Marketing Act. The poll had been postponed from June 15 to await the outcome of the government's appeal from the ruling of Mr. Justice A. M. Manson in Supreme Court that the Marketing Act was ultra vires. The appeal is to be heard June 24.

MAKE LIFE WORTHWHILE

Lady Floud Speaker at Women's Canadian Club Luncheon

"There is in each of us the desire to make something worthwhile of our lives; to get the best out of life," said Lady Floud, wife of Sir Francis Floud, C.B., K.C.B., British High Commissioner to Canada, in addressing the Women's Canadian Club at a tea on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. C. Mills, Margaret Place on the very interesting topic of "Art and the Art of Living." "But some of us, as life goes on, wonder what we have missed and, in order to escape the discontent that possesses us, dash from one thing to another trying to find that elusive something that always escapes us. Some, conscious of this urge for the better things of life, first set out to make themselves financially comfortable only to find themselves at last old and rich and lonely with no real interest in life."

To illustrate Lady Floud spoke of one such who complained that he had five grand houses and no home. It was essential to know early in life what was worthwhile and what would bring true happiness.

Lady Floud said she thought the truest saying in the Bible was, "Knock and it shall be opened unto you. Seek and ye shall find." She spoke of the experience of the artist, Frederick Varley with a class of tired business men who came to him during the depression, seeking release from their worries—men who had never attempted to draw in their lives—and of the astonishing results therefrom.

Lady Floud urged women whose children needed them no more and who were beginning to wonder what they were here for, to look for their latent abilities and hidden talents and so escape the doctor or the bridge table.

Lady Floud would like children to have more opportunity to study art. Not that it was desirable that everyone should become an artist but that more should have the advantage of the education that the study of art gave. It developed the imagination, trained the eye to see beauty where ugliness existed before; taught one to be humble and to make quick decisions, and developed the power of self-expression. All these developed character. The development of character made for better work, and better work made for greater development of character and a fuller and richer life was the result.

Expressing the wish to see a flourishing art club when next she visited Prince Rupert, Lady Floud closed her address with the following quotation from Dame Laura Knight's "Oil Paint and Grease Paint": "It is the artist's unconscious mission to make of the world a richer place, that others through his gifts may share his vision. The world is full of undiscovered beauty—no petty scene but can be glorified in the eyes of him who can see it truly. Above all I wish that my eyes may be opened and that I may learn to see."

The hostess was assisted in receiving the guests by the president, Mrs. F. N. Good, who introduced the guest speaker.

The lacé covered tea table was centred with a lovely bowl of violas, poppies and Pride of London. Mrs. D. McD. Hunter and Mrs. J. D. Fraser poured. Serving the guests were Miss Lillian Halliwell, Mrs. F. A. MacCallum, Mrs. Lionel Holtby, Mrs. W. D. Vance, Mrs. C. H. Elkins and Mrs. A. E. Parlow.

Wallie's Name Removed From Social Register

NEW YORK, June 22—The name of Mrs. Wallis Warfield, who had her own listing in the social register for years, appeared this way today in the summer edition: "Windsor, H.R.H. Duke of... married at Monts, France, June 3rd." "Warfield, Mrs. Wallis (Spencer-Simpson-Wallis-Warfield)." Many observers missed the name on first glance because they assumed it would have its own space.

WAS NOTED AS JURIST

Humphrey Mellish Was Legendary and Likeable Judiciary Figure

HALIFAX, June 22: (CP) — Known first as a brilliant lawyer, and later as a judge whose legal vision was seasoned with sparkling humor and a generous measure of humanity, Humphrey Mellish, who died here at the weekend, during his lifetime became almost a legendary figure in circles having any connection with jurisprudence in Nova Scotia.

He was called to the Supreme Court bench of the province in 1918, after nearly 30 years of general practice with various partnership combinations, all of them, after 1903, in the firm of which Hector McInnes, K.C., who also died Saturday, became the head. His duty it was to look after the bulk of the work as counsel in the various courts, while Mr. McInnes took care of legal affairs of corporations and other large business concerns. Despite his activity, Mellish half humorously described himself as a member of the firm "McInnes and McInnes and McInnes."

These years of arduous practice proved of great value in equipping him for the duties he was later to take up on the bench, but neither work nor the shattering vigor of early rugby football, when he starred with Dalhousie, could dull the edge of his humor.

Apart from his own determination and ability, Mellish had little in the way of material resources when he set out to learn the law. He was a Prince Edward Islander with the will to learn. After achieving his arts degree, he taught as head master of Pictou Academy, centre of schooling in a county which boasts more college presidents, and leaders in the church and business world.

than any other in Nova Scotia. On many occasions his ready wit lightened the tense atmosphere of the courtroom. At one time he was presiding over the trial of a woman charged with murder. Just as a hushed silence grew after a particularly ominous piece of evidence, a spectator blew his nose stentoriously. "Any more applause of that nature," said the learned judge "will not be tolerated by this court."

Judge Mellish was born in Queen County, P. E. I., May 13 1862. Mellish entered the firm of Drysdale and McInnes in 1903 and was created K.C. in the following year. Though pressed with work on all sides, he never failed to fulfil the demands made upon him. He was president of the Nova Scotia Barristers' Society for a year, and served for some years as president of the Overseas Club. Relaxation he found in the peace of a country home on the St. Margaret's Bay Road, some miles from Halifax, where a stream ran through his property, and where he went when the pressure of work came too great. He married, in 1898, Mabel White.
