Californians From Riverside Say Difficulties of Gardening Nothing Like as Great in Rupert as in South

Wonderful Coloring

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Intrigued By Huge Delphiniums And Other Flowers They Saw In Bloom

The advantages of Prince Rupert as a place that could be beautified by flower gardens with plenty of color was emphasized Saturday by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gregory of Riverside, California, who spent several hours wandering around looking at the gardens and enjoying their profusion of color.

Mr. Gregory, who had been as far as Stewart and went south Saturday night on the Prince Charles, said it was the subject of comment everywhere on the boat what wonderful delphiniums were grown in Prince Rupert. He said the spikes were two or three times as large as those in California and much finer colored. The varied shades and the size of the blooms astounded him. He said he had never seen anything like it. At Riverside they could grow hibiscus, zinnias and poinsettia. He strongly urged that the people of Prince Rupert should find out by experiment the flowers that did well here, such as delphiniums, dahlias, nasturtiums and other flowers that he saw in bloom here and feature them to such an extent that the place would become famous for them. The southern tourists saw plenty of zinnias and petunias in the south. What they like when visiting a city such as Prince Rupert was something different and outstanding such as the wonderful delphiniums that were found here.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gregory spoke of the difficulties they had in making gardens in California. It took them four hours to water their garden at Riverside, keeping more than one hose going at a time and the water was all metered so the cost was high. And even then they devoted their attention chiefly to shrubs. Snails and various insects were terrible pests and everything had to be sprayed at regular intervals. To make a real green grass lawn such as those seen here was impossible except for one season. The grass was soon killed out by native weeds. Geraniums grew well but the blooms were nothing like as fine and pure colored as those were they had seen here.

Both the visitors were enthusiastic over the possibilities of gardening in Prince Rupert. When told the difficulties encountered they said they realized there were difficulties but nothing like the difficulties they had in California. There were wonderful possibilities in Prince Rupert.

ADMIRAL DEAD

Commander of Portsmouth naval base and former commander of the Mediterranean fleet, Sir William Fisher (above) died at a London clinic following a short illness. In his 92nd year, he had been in charge of the large Mediterranean fleet during the Italo-Ethiopian crisis. As a boy of 13, he entered the Royal Navy as a cadet and during the Battle of Jutland was in command of the H.M.S. St. Vincent.

Funeral of Agnes Burrison Smith Terrace Saturday

TERRACE, Aug. 2.—Keen regret is felt in the Terrace community in the passing of Agnes Burrison Smith, wife of W. E. Smith, and a large gathering of mourners sought to pay their tribute of respect in Knox United Church on Saturday afternoon. Rev. Adam Crisp was in charge, assisted by Rev. C. A. Hincliffe. Interment took place in the Terrace cemetery, the Rebekah Lodge giving their beautiful graveside ceremony. Pall bearers were, Sam Kirkaldy, Emil Haughland, Elwood Brooks, Stanley Brooks, J. B. Agar and James Smith.

Mrs. Smith was born in Ontario in 1894, moved to Saskatchewan at the age of 15, was married to William Smith in 1913, came to Terrace in 1919 and has resided here ever since. She was active in church and lodge affairs, was past noble grand of Mountain View Rebekah Lodge, No. 47 and was serving as warden for the term. She will be greatly missed by all who knew her especially by her husband and family. Her husband and family voted in Reconciliation unannouncedly to whom she had been a devoted wife and mother.

At the funeral service in the church, the 121 st Psalm and "Abide With Me" were sung, Miss Janet Young playing the funeral music.

Man in the Moon

Good morrow, folks! This sunshine bothers me terribly.

Jake says he does not mind gardening but he hates to pull weeds, pick stones or dig. He likes doing his gardening by proxy.

My razor seems to be dull. I wonder what's wrong with it? I inquired a local citizen to his wife. Her reply was that it was all right when she sharpened her pencil with it the evening before.

It is all right for a man to bury himself in his work if he is not a concrete mixer.

At the Salt Lake recently a girl jumped into the water and dared her boy friend to follow her. He followed, she saved him and now they are engaged to be married. That shows the danger of jumping into the water. There is always the danger that one might be saved.

Officer: "Why were you speeding?"

Man (humbly): "I wasn't speeding. I was just trying to pass the man who bought my old car."

"The captain has asked me to sit on his right hand tonight for dinner."

"What's he gonna stir his coffee with?"

"I took that recipe for that cake out of my best cookery book, darling."

"You did quite right, dear. It should never have been in."

Professor: "Now, at what speed does light travel?"

Student: "Pretty fast, sir. Anyway, it gets here far too soon in the morning."

The other day someone wrote a verse for this paper about cats. It was so bad people suspected the Man in the Moon of writing it.

TERRACE

The representative in the Dominion Parliament, Olof Hanson, has been paying Terrace district a visit during the past few days.

The Terrace and district Board of Trade came to life Monday with a meeting called for the purpose of choosing delegates to attend the convention in Prince Rupert of the Associated Boards, Messrs. Kenney, Riley and King were so named. Other topics which came in for discussion were, first, the desirability of getting something in the way of a first aid hospital at Terrace, with nurse attached: It was felt that Terrace is too far away from hospital facilities, 100 miles either to Prince Rupert or to Hazelton, and second, the obvious desirability of reviving the Board of Trade. Arising from this it is likely that some effort will be made towards resuscitation of the Board in time for the long dark evenings.

The Anglican Church Women's Auxiliary met at Mrs. Gilbert's on Friday. Mrs. T. J. Marsh and Mrs. J. Farquar of Prince Rupert were guests of honor for the tea hour.

Miss McKenney, sister of Constable McKenney, has come from California to stay with her brother and his family for a short holiday.

Seventh Heaven Features Simone Simon At Capitol

As Little Waif French Screen Actress Touches Deepest Places of Heart

In "Seventh Heaven," Austin Strong's immortal love story, adapted from the stage play produced and directed by John Golden, is presented once again that star-crossed pair of lovers, Diane and Chico, who lift your heart to the sky. Simone Simon, as the little waif, surpasses all hopes expressed for this sensational French screen find, who has the strange gift of touching the deepest places of your heart. And James Stewart—tall, laughing, gray-eyed—shines opposite her as Chico of the valiant spirit and the shy yearning love.

For the background of "Seventh Heaven," Twentieth Century-Fox has re-created a vivid and picturesque Montmartre, set in the turbulent days of 1914. In the huge, subterranean Paris sewer, Chico spends his working days, scornful of the Providence that failed, first, to make him a street washer, and, second, to bring him a fine, intelligent wife.

Chico saves the waif, Diane, from a beating, and also from gendarmes who would arrest her for throwing wine in the face of a cafe customer who annoyed her. To do this, he has to pose as Diane's husband, and the gendarmes announce that they will check up on him.

Forced to live up to his story, Chico takes Diane to his garret, where the vista of the stars at night makes him forget the day-long toil in the dank sewer. When war breaks out, and Chico is called to the army, he realizes that he is in love with the waif he befriended, and pledges to return to her in spirit at eleven o'clock every day.

WHIFFLETS From the Waterfront

Steamer Prince Robert arrived this morning from the south with a full complement of tourists aboard. She continued later to Alaska and will be back here Sunday.

Steamer Prince George arrived in port this morning southbound from Alaska to Vancouver.

The packer Chief Weah in the service of the Canadian Fish and Cold Storage Company, arrived in port this morning from North Island after a very rough crossing. Soon after leaving North Island on Friday night the shoe supporting the rudder became disconnected, causing considerable delay owing to slow travelling. At Williams Station equipment for temporary repairs was secured. Just before reaching Prince Rupert one of the bearings burned out which will cause the laying up of the vessel until Wednesday night. Those aboard were Alec Yeomans, Captain Elijah Jones, and Matthew Yeomans.

Despite news of Chico's death, Diane continues to keep her trust, a faith that leads to one of the screen's great emotional moments in a powerful conclusion to the tenderest love story of our time.
