Katharine Hepburn and Fredric March in "Mary of Scotland"

The more exciting period of the glamorous career of Mary, Queen of Scots, fascinating and tragic figure of British history, is portrayed in the great picture "Mary of Scotland" which comes to the screen of the Capitol Theatre here at the end of this week. The photoplay deals with the royal beauty's difficult reign over her native land after her return from France as the young widow of a French king, her epic clash with Elizabeth of England and her tempestuous romance with the Earl of Bothwell.

Katharine Hepburn, in the title role, rises to dramatic heights as the queen who "loved not wisely but too well" and lost her head as a result. Playing opposite Miss Hepburn is Fredric March as the dashing and gallant Earl of Bothwell. Florence Eldridge has the important role of Queen Elizabeth. John Carradine plays Rizzio who was Mary's friend and advisor and who paid for his loyalty with his life. Douglas Walton appears as Lord Darnley and Ian Keith is seen as James of Moray, Mary's treacherous brother.

Sets run the gamut from a fogbound Scottish village to the lavishness of the English court.
