Development of Dogfish Liver Market May Be Important Here—Dybhavn and Carter Leaving For Ottawa

Some forty tons of dogfish livers have been shipped in recent weeks to a United States company and the price the fishermen were paid was five cents a pound. Not a big sum, perhaps, but no doubt a welcome return from what was "new business." When whole fish were sold by the fishermen to the liver-buying agent, with the exact weight of the liver obtainable from the body an uncertainty since the ratio of weight of liver to weight of carcass may vary considerably in the case of dogfish, the price paid for the fish was $8 a ton. The immediate reason why the demand for the livers came to British Columbia this autumn was to be found in the trouble in Asia. The United States company which made the Canadian purchases had formerly been importing dogfish livers from Asiatic sources but this year there was uncertainty of delivery and the company turned to British Columbia. Possibly the result of this occurrence may be increased sales of local livers in future years. Until comparatively recent years nobody knew that dogfish livers had anything to commend them, except, perhaps, the fish themselves. When dogfish were captured for use in making meal and oil in fish reduction plants the livers were cooked and ground up with the rest of the body. In the same way, halibut and swordfish livers used to be thrown away as worthless in the days before it was discovered that it is vitamin content which gives cod liver oil its great health value and that halibut and swordfish livers are also rich in vitamins. A few years ago, however, science found that dogfish livers have high content of Vitamin A, and valuable research in this regard was done, by the way, by Canadian scientists in the federal fisheries service. And so their livers, too, were added to the roll of vitamin bearers, though in the scale of money value they do not come into the high brackets which have been reached by the livers of the more aristocratic halibut and cod and swordfish—aristocrats, indeed, by comparison, with such fish as cod and swordfish, for the dogfish is a sea-going gangster, destructive of fishing gear and decent fish, and a nuisance to fishermen.

John Dybhavn, member of the Fisheries Research Board of Canada, and Dr. Neal Carter, director of the Prince Rupert Fisheries Experimental Station, will leave on Monday evening's train for Ottawa to attend the annual meeting of the Board.

Pouring of grain into the British motorship Moorby, loading a full cargo of wheat at the local elevator for the United Kingdom or Continent, is expected to be completed early this afternoon. The vessel will probably sail sometime tomorrow.

Boat Owners Elect

The Canadian Halibut Vessel Owners' Association, at its annual meeting in Prince Rupert early this week, elected officers for the ensuing year as follows:

President, Capt. J. M. Morrison. Vice-President, Capt. Sam Hougan.

Secretary, H. M. Daggett. Trustees, Capt. C. O. Campbell, Capt. A. M. Martinusen and Capt. Anskar Wick.

Trustees of overage fund, Capt. Dan Larsen and Capt. Sam Hougan.

Committee on liver contracts, Capt. Ole Stegavig, Capt. Sam Hougan and Capt. A. M. Martinusen.

Capt. George Fritz, retiring president, was in the chair over the meeting which, among other matters, discussed curtailment questions for the coming year.

This department of the Prince Rupert Daily News extends to its readers, particularly those good folk along the waterfront, best wishes for a very Merry Christmas. May the season be replete with seasonal joys according to individual tastes.
