Japan Persists

A Canadian Press dispatch to the Daily News yesterday intimated that the Japanese intend to pursue their surveys of international fishing waters off the North American continent, more particularly Alaska and British Columbia. The ultimate intention, of course, is to institute fishing therein, probably on a mass scale. Fearing that the results of years of careful and self-sacrificing conservation of the salmon and halibut fisheries in these waters may be undone with a brief period of intensive fishing by the Japanese, who have already depleted their own waters and to considerable extent those of Russia, Canadian and American fishing authorities have already protested against the threatened Japanese incursion. This, apparently, has had no effect upon the Japanese. In any case, they announce officially that they are going ahead with their surveys.

If diplomatic reasoning proves unavailing, then some other method of heading off the threatened invasion of North American continental waters will have to be found. It would be regrettable if economic reprisals would have to be resorted to. They seldom, if ever, accomplish anything in the long run.

Meantime, about the only thing for our authorities to do is to continue to endeavor to make the Japanese see the justice and reason of our claim to exclusive rights to the fisheries which we have so assiduously endeavored to build up and maintain. If they do not, it would probably be only a matter of a very few years before there would be no fish for anybody.

The Yukon Question

The proposal that the province of British Columbia take over the Territory of Yukon is proving a widespread topic of discussion. Now the Yukon council has come out unequivocally opposed to the idea and demanding that a plebiscite be taken before anything is done. That the plebiscite will be granted before any further negotiations are pursued is very likely. It would seem reasonable that the people of the Yukon, most vitally affected by such a deal, should be given the right to express themselves before being absorbed. Meantime, possibly for political purposes, there would seem to be a little more alarm being raised about the whole thing than is justified. It was made clear at the outset that any deal was subject to legislative and parliamentary approval.

PIRATES LEADING

Are Still on Top in National League—Yanks Ahead In American

PITTSBURG, May 1: (CP)—Pittsburg Pirates are still in the lead in the National League after having suffered their first defeat of the season yesterday at the hands of the Chicago Cubs who, as a result, climbed out of the cellar into a seventh place tie with the Cincinnati Reds who lost to the highly touted St. Louis Cardinals. The New York Giants defeated Brooklyn Dodgers and are still tied with the Cards for second place in the senior circuit.

The New York Yankees remain on top of the American League although beaten by the cellar-dwelling Washington Senators. Detroit Tigers, by virtue of their 10-inning victory over Cleveland Indians, ousted the Indians from second place. The Philadelphia Athletics, as a result of an ignominious rout at the hands of the Boston Red Sox, dropped into fifth place tied with the idle Chicago White Sox while the Red Sox moved into third position.

Sons of Canada and Canadian Legion to Stage Coronation Day Exhibition Game

The 1937 local baseball season will get under way on Coronation Day, May 12, when two teams, representing Sons of Canada and Canadian Legion will stage an exhibition game in conjunction with the celebration.

If weather permits the boys will be out in full force tomorrow morning for a work-out and will follow this up with practices during the next ten days. Two strong teams should line up for the opener with Jock Campbell managing the Legionairres while it is expected Walter Johnson will handle the Sons of Canada.

Most of last year's players are still around and will be out again this year. A couple of the old standbys in the persons of Stan Moran and Bill Lambie will be missing, however, the former having decided to hang up his spikes due to the encroachments of Father Time while the latter has moved to Vancouver.

Some new talent is said to have arrived in town since last fall and tomorrow should see the newcomers out warming up on the diamond.

Campbell Keeps Promise to Kin

LONDON, May 1: (CP)—Fulfilling a pledge, Sir Malcolm Campbell has decided not to make any further attempts to break his own world land speed record of 304 miles per hour. "I made a definite promise to my family that if I reached the speed of 300 m.p.h. I would not make any further attempts on the automobile speed record," he explained. "I have reached 300 and I am to adhere to that promise, much to my regret."

But Sir Malcolm finds he cannot live without the thrill of speed. He has turned his attention from land to water.

For the last 18 months he has been engaged in construction of a new type of one-man high-speed motor boat. He hopes to try it out for the first time on Scotland's Loch Lomond in June.
