THE UNITED STATES THANKS THE NEWS.

In its task of making Prince Rupert known all over the Continent, The Daily News receives almost daily some evidence of the attention it is attracting abroad. One of the most amusing of these occurs in a recent number of the Harrisburg Telegraph, which "on behalf of the United States" confers its thanks to the Prince Rupert News. The Telegraph in a lengthy editorial article entitled "Helping the Players" says:

Prince Rupert is a comparatively new and booming town in British Columbia not far from the Alaska line. It is to be the terminus of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway, which is now in course of construction, but although it will doubtless be an important city some day, it does seem a little odd that we should be obliged—close as we are to Yale, Harvard, Princeton and Carlisle, not to mention the occasionally efficient University of Pennsylvania—to acknowledge ourselves indebted to Prince Rupert for football pointers, yet so it is.

The Prince Rupert Daily News tells of a game between the Medford High School and Grants Pass teams, in which Medford won by the unusual score of thirty-nine to nothing. The victory is attributed entirely to the girls of the domestic science department in the Medford High School who prepared luncheon for the high school players before the game under the direction of their teacher.

It was the object of the hostesses to provide a menu which would furnish a maximum force, calories, food units, etc., with a minimum of digestive effort. After careful study of the needs of the team, it was decided that bean soup, poached eggs, toast and spring water constituted the proper ration. The girls did the cooking themselves and waited on the table and after they had fed their champions went to the football field to cheer and watch the result of their experiment.

We are informed by The News that "their vocal enthusiasm was superfluous, however, for the soup and poached egg players simply swamped the Grants Pass eleven, who had to rely upon what nourishment the Medford restaurants offered."

Here is an argument in favor of domestic science which seems to have been overlooked by those of us who have advocated its establishment in the public schools of Harrisburg, as well as in the summer playground course. If our young women have been rather contemptuous of the knowledge offered them in domestic science text books it is because they interpreted it to mean only prosaic "kitchen drudgery" and have not realized its romantic possibilities in the field of sport.

What would be the satisfaction of making a sofa pillow or embroidering a pennant in comparison with the delights of fattening or thinning to the required dimensions a candidate for the varsity team? Or consider the proud distinction of watching your special charge leap victoriously against the tape after a hard-fought race, while the uproarious applause of the spectators proclaim the prowess of your skilful and every sign of weakness. You could say as he dropped behind:

"It was a mistaken kindness to allow him that charlotte russe."

And when he forged ahead: "Ah! There go the calories in yesterday's sausage."

When we ponder over this tender and affecting phase of domestic science, we regret exceedingly that it was not discovered sooner and on behalf of the United States we confess a debt of gratitude to the Prince Rupert News.

The News has great pleasure in accepting the thanks of the United States—and the free advertising that the Telegraph has so generously given to Prince Rupert.
