SPORTS

A CLEVER FRENCH BOXER

Georges Carpentier Looks as if He Will Make Great Fighter.

Boxing has always been considered a British sport, but it looks as if the French might yet excel at it. Georges Carpentier, a French youth, is already attracting the attention of the big promoters by his clever work.

Though still well in his teens—for, according to the French records, Carpentier was not born until the year 1894—the Gaul has had a brilliant time in the ring. In a career of three years he has never suffered defeat in any bout of an important nature. Until he met "Sir" Burns at Earl's Court recently all his matches had been decided in his native land, and his debut in England created so good an impression that, despite his power and experience, Josephs was considered by many to be lacking the toughest job he had ever taken on. But few expected Josephs to get such a licking as he did. It was the worst he had received in all his boxing career.

Carpentier's display with Burns proved him to be a quick and skilful boxer, with quite a variety of strokes for one so young, an excellent general and a fine stayer in the bargain.

Carpentier has proved a surprise in many ways. The boy has grown with extraordinary rapidity, and improved as fast as he has grown. Starting two years ago as a bantamweight, he has grown so rapidly that the present time he has all he can do to make 146 pounds. In a short time he will be in the middleweight division. His career has been almost uniformly successful, he having accounted for nearly all the prominent light and welter weights in England in addition to Josephs.

On his feet he is quick and a puzzling customer to a slower rival. He hops about the ring like a rubber ball and then springs back at his antagonist as quick as lightning and with the grace of a panther. If ever he develops into a heavyweight then will there be a prospect of a white champion.

THE WAY OF AN OCTOPUS

Will Canada Stand for the Exploitation of Her Timber and Natural Resources as the States Have Done?

Charles Edward Russell has made for the Cosmopolitan a thorough investigation of lumber trust methods—he has followed the slippery trail of the lumber octopus literally from coast to coast—and he has the "goods." You will be surprised at his revelations—that the tremendous power of the trust, its brazen indifference to all but its own interests, its hold upon legislators, its highway methods of national pocket picking. It will be a great series of articles—vitaly interesting to every one who has ever bought any part of a tree. The first article will appear in January. Subscriptions to Cosmopolitan will be accepted until December 10th at the special low rate to Canada of $1.50. Cosmopolitan Agency, box 851, Winnipeg.

THE COSY CORNER

DEVOTED PRINCIPALLY TO THE INTERESTS OF WOMEN

This is a little section of the paper, which from day to day will be devoted to subjects of special interest to women. Any and all of the ladies of Prince Rupert are invited to contribute to its columns, and to take part in its discussions. Suggestions and criticisms are invited by the editor. The hope is expressed that "The Cosy Corner" will fill a social need.

MARK TWAIN'S MOTHER

When You Read This You'll Know Where Mark Got His Humor.

In the course of an interesting article on "Mark Twain and His Mother," which appears in the November Harper's Monthly Magazine, Mr. Albert Bigelow Paine says:

"At about this time it was decided that little Sam was now ready to go to school. He was about five years old, and a summer on his uncle's farm had left him wiry and lively, even if not very robust. His mother declared that he gave her more trouble than all the other children put together."

"He drives me crazy with his dildoes when he is in the house," she used to say, "and when he is out of it I am expecting every minute that some one will bring him home half dead."

"He did, in fact, achieve the first of his 'nine narrow escapes from drowning' about this time, and was pulled out of the river one afternoon and brought home in a limp and unpromising condition. When with mullen tea and castor oil she had restored him to activity, she said:

"I guess there wasn't much danger. People born to be hanged are safe in water."

"She declared she was willing to pay somebody to take him off her hands for a part of each day and try to teach his manners. Perhaps it may as well be said here that Jane Clemens was the original of 'Tom Sawyer's' Aunt Polly, and her portrait as presented in that book is considered perfect. Kind-hearted, fearless, looking and acting ten years older than her age, as women did in that time, always outspoken and sometimes severe, she was regarded as a 'character' by her friends, and beloved by them as a charitable, sympathetic woman whom it was good to know. Her sense of pity was abnormal. She refused to kill even flies, and punished the cat for catching mice. She would drown the young kittens when necessary, but warmed the water for the purpose. On coming to Hannibal she joined the Presbyterian church, and her religion was of that clean-cut, strenuous kind which regards as necessary institutions hell and satan, though she had been known to express pity for the latter for having been obliged to surround himself with such poor society. Her children she directed ed with considerable firmness, and all were tractable and growing in grace except little Sam. Even baby Henry at two was lisping the prayers that Sam would let go by default unless carefully guarded. His sister Pamela, who was eight years older and always loved him dearly, usually supervised these spiritual exercises, and, in her gentle care, earned immortality as the Cousin Mary of 'Tom Sawyer.' He would say his prayers willingly enough when encouraged by sister Pamela, but he much preferred to sit up in bed and tell astonishing tales of the day's adventures—tales which made prayer seem a futile corrective, and caused his listeners to wonder why the lightning was restrained so long. They did not know they were glimpsing the first outcroppings of a genius that would one day amaze and entertain the nations. Neighbors hearing of these things (also certain of his narrations) remonstrated with Mrs. Clemens. "You don't believe anything that child says, I hope." "Oh, yes, I know his average. I discount him ninety per cent. The rest is pure gold."

FOR A SMOKING CHIMNEY

Three Hints That Will Brighten the Fire and Save Fuel.

At this time of the year many housekeepers complain of open fireplaces smoking. Here are three little hints that Prince Rupert housekeepers might practice with economy for keeping the chimney from smoking:

1. Place empty tins, such as milk tins, salmon or fruit tins, at the back of the grate; they will send out a splendid heat.
2. Sprinkle salt-petre now and again on the top of the fire.
3. Mix a small piece of zinc among the coal.

TO MAKE CHEESE CUSTARDS

Cheese Custards—Beat up four eggs, add half a cupful of boiling milk, three tablespoonfuls of grated Parmesan cheese, salt, pepper and paprika; pour into small buttered timbale molds, stirring all the time so as not to let the cheese settle. Steam very gently until set. Stamp out rounds of bread a little larger than the molds and fry in hot melted butter to a golden color. Dish one custard on top of each, put a little pile of grated cheese on the top and brown in the oven.

FIRST: "CATCH YOUR PRINTER"

DIRECTIONS FOR COOKING A HARE: FIRST—"CATCH YOUR HARE"

To produce good printing you must "first catch your printer." You can't get good printing from a poor printer, even if he works with never so good an equipment. If he lacks the "knack," the trained taste, the single-minded fondness for his work which real printers have, he will do poor printing for you. If he has all of these, and in addition to them adequate modern equipment, your printing will have distinction, salesmanship, the lure of type-beauty.

As this office produces good printing you may infer the presence of a good printer—who is "catchable."
