LONELY DEATH
NEAR MASSETT

Settler Named Burke Laid Down
His Burden Near Nadu River and Died in Solitude While on Way Home.

Masset, Dec. 12.—The body of a settler named Burke, who arrived at Massett about a year ago, was found on November 30th on a trail near the Nadu River. The deceased formerly lived at a small stream near Massett and was removing his effects to a new pre-emption when he succumbed. When and how he died will remain a mystery. He had removed a load of household effects from his back and lain down beneath a tree.

He was formerly a soldier in the British army and was a pensioner, having received a sunstroke while on duty. When he first arrived on Graham Island he made his home in a burnt tree.

An inquest was not considered necessary and the remains were interred on the shores of the inlet, where he intended to make his home.

WEATHERED THE STORM

E. Tingley Braved Gale in Parry
Passage in Gasoline Launch.

Masset, Dec. 12.—Eli Tingley, who recently proceeded with his launch to the West Coast, returned safely and made a second trip, which occupied but a few days. He rode out the storm in Parry Passage and proved that the West Coast is no more dangerous during the winter season than it is at any other time of the year. Mr. Tingley is interested in a large number of good claims in the neighborhood of Otard Bay and West River.

TO LOOK YOUR BEST

If You Are a Blonde You Must Observe These Valuable Hints.

The path of the blonde beauty is beset with difficulties that her darker sisters do not have to contend with. In the first place, fair hair requires much more washing than brown or black hair. It should really be washed once a week, without fail, whereas, darker hair can go three weeks and be none the worse.

A little borax, cloudy ammonia or ordinary washing soda should be added to the first cleansing water—about a dessertspoonful of either of the two former, or a piece the size of a hazel nut of the latter—to an ordinary basin of warm water is the right proportion. If more is used the hair will become brittle.

At least three waters should be used. After the hair is thoroughly washed in the above mentioned cleansing water it should be soiled in warm water, and then in cold. If the first waters do not quite cleanse it, it should have a third washing in warm water with a lather of pure white Castile soap; then a final rinsing in nearly cold water.

In order to keep the hair as fluffy as possible it should never be combed or brushed before it is perfectly dry. Allowing it to dry in a tangled mass helps to keep it wavy, even after the use of brush and comb.

Fair people are generally afflicted with a dry skin, and for this reason they require more applications of cold creams, etc., than do their darker sisters. For this reason also fair people are more addicted to wrinkles. When these begin to show, massaging with a good massage cream should be commenced at once; it is the only effectual remedy for a wrinkled skin.

It is stated by some well-known authorities that there is nothing more beneficial to a fair complexion than the eating of oranges. As a last word, just a hint about dress.

The "blonde" must be particularly careful in her choice of colors. Red, pinks and, generally speaking, all bright shades of greens and blues should be avoided.

As a rule, she looks best in tones of green, also in black—a brownish tone, and in the darker black hat especially. For the evening she should wear white, or else a very pale shade of blue.

SCARED OF THE WOMEN

Male Shop Assistants Won't Let Them Serve in the Stores.

The introduction of women clerks into department stores hitherto sacred to men has angered the male assistants of Melbourne, Australia, who view this as the thin edge of the wedge. As a result the men went on strike until arrangements were made that the women clerks were not to sell any article above the value of sixpence.

TO MAKE FOWL TENDER

Even a Tough Old Bird Will Respond to This Treatment.

First steam it for an hour, before steaming put a few stalks of celery and a slice of onion inside the bird to flavor it. When it is taken from the steamer fill with well-seasoned dressing. The fowl must be carefully handled when stuffing, as it is already half cooked, and may be easily torn; put tiny pieces of butter on the top. Truss it neatly, roast till crisp and brown. The fowl will be nice and juicy and as tender as a chicken.

AN XMAS CONFECTION

This Is Something You Can Easily Make at Home.

Beat four ounces of butter, same of castor sugar, two spoonfuls of milk and half an ounce of essence of vanilla, ten ounces of flour, a teaspoonful of baking powder. Drop on a buttered tin in teaspoonfuls, sprinkle sugar over. Bake ten minutes.

Hermits kisses is the fancy name given to this dainty confection.

The problem of selecting small Xmas gifts for sending by mail is easily solved at Wark's. Remember, your last opportunity for mailing gifts home is Thursday.

WOMEN ON WOMEN

Clever Sayings of Women About Own Sex—Are They True?

It seems we never can unproot that time-grown notion, so essentially masculine, that we women must welcome men simply because men are men.

Some women have the habit of scintillating in the gaslight. If I were a man going in for loving a woman I should like her to appear ideal to other men than myself.

There has never been a mirror made that can show people how other people think they look.

Many superior women are bullied, but when a bullied woman once realizes her superiority the game is up.

The hardest habit for a thinking woman to conquer is the habit of being dominated.

The very best of women resort to coquetry in indecision.

We could never respect the ropes that bind us if we did not first break our finger nails trying to untie the knots.

People who aspire to be unexpected are often disagreeably so.

Wise women come to realize how essentially satisfactory is the simple mind of a normal man.
