ONE LONG WAIL

Judging from the reports in various country newspapers, there is one long long wail going up because none of the localities received as much money as they expected for road work. Each one hoped to be the most favored place in the matter of expenditures, not realizing that if that place obtained more, the others would have to get less.

In a new country money is badly needed for roads in every corner of the province as well as money for surfacing and keeping up the trunk roads. It is for the engineers in consultation with the heads of departments to decide how much shall go to trunk highways and how much to local roads. Then the question of distribution of the amount for local roads has to be decided upon, based on the needs of the place and also on the needs of other places. There is constant pressure brought to bear from each district but this pressure has to be resisted and each treated as fairly as is humanly possible. In connection with this there is bound to be a certain amount of friction no matter who has the say in the matter of allocation of funds. Each community gets as much as it possibly can and grumbles because it cannot get more.

Locally there was a time when highway work was shut down. There was no money so we could not get any. Very little protest was made at the time to the Tolmie administration because we all knew there was no money. Then as conditions changed the pressure became greater and more money was received.

Take another example. In Alberni the government has been doing some surfacing and this year more was expected than was received. Costs were higher than was expected and a delegation was sent to Victoria to try to induce the government to change its mind. As the money was not available, no change could be made and the delegation returned home much upset over its failure. If Alberni had received more, some other place or places would have had to receive less which would have been wrong.

The whole question of the allocation of road funds is very difficult but, after the needs of each community have been studied and compared with the needs of other communities, none but the public works authorities are in a position to decide if still more money can be expended in any particular locality.

AUSTRIAN POLITICS

Politics in Austria is rather a strenuous occupation just now. Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg is a dictator. He allows monarchists to publicly advocate their policies but national socialists are disallowed. Anyone offending is sent by the police to a concentration camp for three months without the order of a magistrate or other official. Citizens are deprived of civil liberties at will and political parties are strictly outlawed, except such as the administration favors.

Visitors to Austria return to tell us how they like the country and the people. They are not inconvenienced by the fact that telegraph, telephone and post office officials are bound to report conversations or correspondence which may be detrimental to the present regime. They are not subject to the law in regard to political activities or the loss of civil liberties. They have no occasion to take any part in political activities so they do not realize the objectionable features of the dictatorship.

NEW FIGHT IS MOOTED BOWLING RESUMED

Promoter Mike Jacobs Thinks Louis and Farr Might Draw Million Dollar Gate

NEW YORK, Sept. 1: (CP)—Following the great showing on Monday night of Tommy Farr, the Welsh challenger, in all but toppling Joe Louis from his world's heavyweight championship throne, promoter Mike Jacobs talked yesterday of a return bout next June (which he predicted would net over $1,000,000).

Joe Louis, wearing dark glasses to hide his swollen eyes, said he had hurt his right hand in the third round and had used his left exclusively thereafter.

Farr hurt his hand also. The British fighter had been on the offensive throughout the battle and, even at the last, bleeding under the eyes and from the forehead, charged into Louis. The last was one of the five rounds the Welshman was credited with winning.
