Employment of Married Women

Single girls and their parents object to married women taking positions that might be taken by single girls. Yesterday we interviewed a firm that occasionally employs a married woman and here is the substance of the answer to questions:

"Evidently this is a case of self-interest. The single girls wear the fine clothes and they object to the married women doing the same. My opinion is that a married woman has just as much right to a little extra money as has a single girl. By giving the single girls employment we encourage them to remain single and fail in their duty to the community. They feel that as long as they remain single they can afford fine clothes but, as soon as they are married, then two people have to live on the salary of one and soon possibly three or four have to do the same. If we sometimes give employment to a married woman we feel that we are reversing this order a little and giving the married woman a chance."

Continuing, the interviewed merchant said something like this: "If the girls want to set things right they should ask for legislation to compel the bachelors to marry or pay a heavy surtax for their failure to do their duty. But girls don't want to be married. They prefer to flaunt their finery on the streets and look down on their poor married sisters. I have no sympathy with them. After this, I plan to give as many married women employment as possible. They deserve it for their bravery in getting married. We have heard this 'yapping' from the girls and parents of girls until I am sick and tired of hearing them. If I had my way I would tax every unmarried person over twenty-one years of age and the girls should pay as well as the bachelors, using for the purpose some of the money they now expend on fine clothes and shows and dances from which their married friends are barred because of the cost."

Naturally this strongly expressed opinion was a little disconcerting. We are unable to publish the expletives with which it was adorned but we feel we should pass along the idea as being possibly rather novel and in fairness to the married women. Evidently the subject seems to be a debatable one but, in discussing it, we cannot allow reference direct or indirect to any individual employer.

SIMPSON WEDDING

Marriage of Third Generation Of Crosby Girls' Home Graduate Is Solemnized

PORT SIMPSON, June 5:—The Crosby Girls' Home was the setting of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock when Elizabeth Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnson Russ of Greenville, became the bride of Anthony Moses Calder, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Calder, also of Greenville.

To the strains of the Lohengrin Bridal Chorus, played by Mrs. A. E. Perry, the bride entered the room on the arm of her father, passing through an arch of wands held by the pupils of the Crosby Girls' Home. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a floor length gown of white crepe with yoke of silk lace and full lace sleeves, gathered at the wrist. Her trailing veil was of silk net, pleated around the crown to give a halo effect and finished with orange blossoms. She carried a conventional bouquet of lilies, roses and fern tied with a large white tulle bow. The bride was attended by Miss L. M. Deacon, as matron of honor who wore a navy blue crepe ensemble with touches of white and a corsage of gardenia. Samuel Gray was groomsmen and the ceremony was performed by Rev. R. J. Love, pastor of Grace United Church, Port Simpson.

During the signing of the register the girls of the Home sang "O Perfect Love" following which a reception was held in the dining room which was decorated with mauve and yellow flowers. Sixty guests partook of dainty refreshments. A three-tier wedding cake centred the bridal table which was presided over by Mrs. R. J. Love and Miss G. M. Bedford, assisted by Misses Anna Ross, Thelma Sankey and Edna Alexee.

The toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. R. J. Love and was responded to by the bride's father. In the course of his remarks Mr. Russ said that his mother was one of the pupils of the first Crosby Girls' Home about sixty years ago and was married by the Rev. Thomas Crosby at a wedding similar to this in the old home. Her granddaughter, the bride of today, was a graduate of the present Home. Mr. Russ also remarked that he was a graduate of the Port Simpson Boys' Home and the groom of Coqualeetza Residential School.

The guests included Rev and Mrs. R. J. Love, Miss L. M. Deacon, Mrs. A. E. Perry, Miss G. M. Bedford, Mr. and Mrs. J. Russ, Mr. and Mrs. P. Calder, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Moraes, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Calder, Mesdames H. White, J. H. Clark, M. Ward, Misses J. G. Staples, E. Lincoln, M. Calder, A. Ward, M. Martin, B. Calder, Messrs. S. J. Gray, C. Davis, S. P. Calder, A. E. Stephens, P. Clarke and the pupils of the Crosby Girls' Home.

A party of twenty accompanied the bride to Port Simpson from the Naas River.

Miss L. M. Deacon, principal of the Crosby Girls' Home, had charge of wedding arrangements.
