NOTED FOR RETICENCE

George F. Baker Was One Of The Wealthiest of Americans

NEW YORK, June 3: (AP)—While accumulating over a stretch of sixty odd years a fortune variously estimated at from $100,000,000 to $300,000,000, and which was said to have ranked him third among the wealthy men of the country, George F. Baker, dead in Honolulu, acquired one of the oddest reputations—that for silence—ever associated with one of the great captains of American finance and industry. Because of his aversion to being interviewed and talking for publication, Mr. Baker became known as "the Sphinx of Wall Street." Although one of the outstanding figures in the financial and transportation development of this country, it was not until recent years when associates on several occasions paid him tribute that the public generally began to learn of him. Up to that time less was known personally of the aged banker than of many men whose standing in the business world did not begin to compare in importance with that of Mr. Baker. Natural modesty and inherent reticence kept veiled the details of Mr. Baker's early life and to all, except his immediate associates in the Wall Street district, his extensive financial operations were unknown. Biographers found it difficult to obtain information concerning him with the result that American biographical works contain only the most meagre details of his life. Mr. Baker's attitude toward interviews always had been one of the mysteries of the world's great financial centre, and it was not until after he had celebrated his 82nd birthday anniversary that he broke his silence and gave an intimation as to why he had refrained from making public statements during his long business career. "Business men of America should reduce their talk at least two-thirds," he told the representative of a New York newspaper who had persuaded him to be interviewed. "Everyone should reduce his talk. There is rarely ever a reason good enough for anybody to talk. Silence uses up much less energy. I don't"

Duke of Windsor and Wallis Warfield are Married Today At Monts in Double Ceremony

Both Express Hope That They Will be Able to Live Useful And Happy Private Lives—Both Civil And Religious Rites

CHATEAU DE CANDE, Monts, France, June 3: (CP)—Edward, Duke of Windsor, took Wallis Warfield as his bride and duchess today. They were married in a French civil ceremony followed by rites of the Church of England. Rev. Anderson Jardine united the former King and the twice-divorced American woman for whom he left the throne. He did so without sanction of his church. The Duke and Duchess were first married by Dr. Charles Mercier, mayor of Monts, in a civil ceremony. Then, after cocktails on the terrace of the Chateau de Touraine, a few friends gathered in the music room where the Vicar of Darlington read the Anglican service at an improvised altar. The wedding gift from the Duke to the Duchess was a diamond diadem. Madame Mercier, wife of the mayor, gave her a bouquet of red, white and blue flowers. Following the ceremonies both expressed hope for a happy and useful private life, in a statement addressed to the public. Also the Duke asked newspapermen for the privacy they consider their due while agreeing to supply any news of importance concerning the Duchess and himself. They left afterwards by automobile on their honeymoon.

Vancouver is Swept by Big Windstorm and Damage Done Estimated Today at $50,000

VANCOUVER, June 3: (CP)—The Lower Mainland today reckoned damage from a violent gale last night at more than $50,000. The wind, which died down today after reaching at times a velocity of thirty-five miles per hour, fanned destructive fires, interrupted power and communication services, blew down trees and scattered small craft. The gale sent the big trans-Pacific liner Empress of Canada crashing into her dock while landing but the damage was small. At Port Kells a $7,500 sawmill, five sections of lumber and 300,000 feet of logs were consumed by wind-fanned flames. Fire licked over peatlands in the Delta. Five homes were burned on Lulu Island and five in New Westminster. There were no casualties. Concern was felt today for the safety of the fish packer Western Shore which is overdue.
