CONDITIONS IMPROVING

Despatches from the East indicate that general industrial conditions are already improving following the recession which started in the fall. The president of the United States and industrial leaders have discussed the situation and, if they have not agreed upon a line of action, they now understand each other better than they did before. Between them they can do a great deal if they will.

JAPANESE POSITION

The Japanese position is a different one for the Japanese. They have expended a lot of money, sacrificed thousands of lives and all they have secured as a result is a bushel of trouble. They have pushed their way into China and like the man with the wildcat in the tree will find it difficult to let go. They cannot retreat with dignity and to stay where they are is also to admit defeat. To go ahead is extremely dangerous because, in a huge country like China where the people are being aroused, the invaders are liable to be cut off. No wonder they had to have a conference with the Emperor. They might do well to consult with the god Buddha.

STARTING OUT WELL

As head of the department of trade and industry, Hon. W. J. Asselstine is starting out after business. His interview with Premier Aberhart may or may not bring results but, at any rate, it indicates that he is not to be one of those who sit down and wait for business to come to them. One of the newspaper writers speaks of him as "young Mr. Asselstine" indicating that he is full of vigor and keen on his job.

AND NOW IT IS PORTUGAL

The political differences which have divided Spain are evidently spreading to Portugal. Arrests have been made and there is possibility of more trouble. Possibly the recent government victory in Spain has given encouragement to those of a similar persuasion in Portugal.

SPORT CHAT

Steve Donoghue, the one and only "Steve" to millions of British racing fans who headed the list of winning jockeys for 10 straight years and booted home six Derby winners, is well launched on a new career as a trainer. With 30 horses in his care, the 52-year old rider, still smiling and spry despite the buffeting of 30 years in the saddle, is busy preparing training quarters at Newbury Berkshire. Many owners whose colors he wore have promised their patronage.

Since he first answered the bugle call of "Boots and Saddles" at the age of 22 to bring Turkish Delight II home winner at Phoenix Park, Dublin, the little Irishman has piloted 1,840 thoroughbreds first past the post. Gordon Richards, successor to the jockeys crown, has surpassed his figures of "wins" and places, but Steve's feat of bringing in the winner of the Epsom Derby, premier British classic, three years in succession never has been duplicated.

When he galloped home on Humorist a rank Derby outsider in 1921, Steve was in his hey-day. He had been champion jockey for seven years and had his pick of mounts. In 1922 he plagued the prophets when he finished going away on Captain Cattle. In 1923 he rode the year's outstanding three-year-old, Ben Irish's Papyrus, to victory in the classic. Fans agreed no one could negotiate the switchback Epsom course, with its counter-clockwise direction and crucial Tattenham Corner, like the little Irish wizard. It was a legend that Steve rode around Tattenham Corner with one leg over the rail.

In 1928 he journeyed to the United States with Papyrus for a challenge race against Harry Sinclair's Zev, champion American three-year-old. He finished five lengths behind Earl Sande on Zev. Steve offered no excuses, though many blamed the unsettling voyage and the unfamiliar clay track for Papyrus' failure. At that time Steve was among the most popular men in England. He was received everywhere and numbered among his intimates many of the greatest in the land. Racing crowds forgot his mount in a close finish and yelled: "Come on Steve!" a cry that became a catchword.

Donoghue took the stump for Winston Churchill in a Westminster election campaign and, when he suffered a double fracture of his leg in a heavy fall at Nottingham, King George V and Lord Derby headed the list of sympathizers.

When Steve won the Derby with H. E. Morris' Mania in 1925, rumour said the delighted owner made him an outright gift of £10,000.

But money never stuck with Steve and three years later, when the flow of winners ceased, he was bankrupt. When creditors met to discuss the jockey's debts it was revealed he was riding for three guineas (about $15, a race, with an added two guineas for a win. He had ridden 108 consecutive losers. His luck turned at last, and then began one of the episodes which most endear him to the British public - his partnership with Sir Harry Wernher's colt Brown Jack.

"Steve and Brown Jack" became a "gag" as time and again

BROMWICH BEAT MAKO

International Tennis Tournament Is Started in Australia

ADELAIDE, Australia, Jan. 13 (CP)—In the first match of an international contest along the lines of Davis Cup competition, Jack Bromwich, youthful Australian tennis star, defeated Gene Mako of the United States 7-5, 7-5, 7-5 today.

Don Budge, United States, Wimbledon tennis champion, is ill with influenza and it is considered doubtful if he will be started in exhibition doubles he is scheduled to play tomorrow.

the combination scored. The pair monopolized the Queen Alexandra Stakes at Newmarket, winning it for six successive years, the last time when Brown Jack was 10 years old. Brown Jack was Steve's favorite mount and after the horse was retired to pasture, Steve would travel down from London to talk to his old friend. The sight of Steve's stocky figure would bring Brown Jack across the paddock at a canter.

A native of Warrington, Lancashire, Steve first went up on a racehorse when he was 13 years old. He won his first Derby on Pommern in 1915 and his second two years later on Gay Crusader. Steve Donoghue was entertained by his brother jockeys at a farewell dinner recently. Steve's speech was broadcast and far away in Brown Jack's stable they fixed up a receiver. Steve had a message for his old pal. "Hello, old boy," he said. "I can see you now you beauty. I hope your ears are burning because I'm thinking of you all the time."

LEGION IN PUCK WIN

Breaks Into Win Column For First Time This Season in Smithers Hockey

SMITHERS, Jan. 13:—The Canadian Legion hockey team scored its first victory of the season on Sunday afternoon by trouncing the league-leading Native Sons of Canada 4 to 2 in a fast and hotly contested game before a large crowd.

The ex-soldiers had the crowd with them and played bang-up hockey and proved to the world that they are still to be figured on in any attempts to forecast the winners of the season.

The change made recently when "Topsy" Robinson was taken from goal and put back to his old position on the front line with Fred Giraud between the posts has bolstered up the team in good style and the sharp-shooting Natives could not find the net as easily as they had been in the habit of doing.

The first period ended with the score one to nil in favor of the Legion. The second period was more than half gone when the Native Sons evened the count but the Legion came right back in less than a minute to take advantage again when Bob Dunlop and Ken Warner made a brilliant combination play and netted the puck.

Topsy Robinson got the third tally for the soldiers and Dunlop and Warner repeated their combination play to result in the fourth and last counter.

The game was exceedingly clean hockey and proved to the world that they are still to be figured on in any attempts to forecast the winners of the season.

The Legion will play the Elks team this Thursday evening and hopes to continue its newly found winning streak until it dominates the league.

TURKEY CURLING CONTEST NEARS ITS CONCLUSION

Billy Little of Woodcock has not yet been heard from but he is expected to make his annual pilgrimage to Smithers to enter his team in some of the bonspiels before the season is over.
