WILL HE BE SENSIBLE?

We can quite understand why the Nazi oligarchy in Berlin would like to absorb Czechoslovakia's 54,244 square miles of territorial substance and an ethnological mixture of nearly 16,000,000 people, says the Victoria Times. Accretion on such a scale would immeasurably strengthen Greater Germany, bring the "Drang-nach-Osten" dream nearer to a realization, and furnish the much-needed economic revival.

Unfortunately for Reichsfuehrer Hitler, however, the political and human obstacles are formidable ones. More than 12,000,000 Czechoslovaks, quite irrespective of their Slavic and various other racial classifications, strongly object to any semblance of submission to the technique of the swastika which added Austria to the Third Reich. And, of course, it is thoroughly well known by this time that the policy of "boring from within" has not moved as smoothly as anticipated in the war-born republic. But it was part of the Nazi chieftain's pose as protector and father confessor of all his compatriots, whether they be in the upper reaches of the Amazon or in Chicago's "bad lands."

It was also a part of the Hitler plan to try to convince the world that the Sudeten Germans, all of the 3,500,000, were eager to fall at the feet of the High Priest of Nazism. Various types of technique have been applied to produce the necessary effect. To a point, perhaps, it has succeeded. But it is beginning to be apparent now that it has been overdone. The Sudeten German leader, Herr Konrad Henlein, carried out his instructions tolerably well. By the middle of last May, at the start of the communal elections, the stage appeared to be ready for the long-hinted-at coup. But Downing Street and the Quai d'Orsay issued a modest, yet effective, warning. The pedal extremities of Adolf the Nazi suddenly became chilled. It was a narrow escape. During the last three months, moreover, Europe has several times been brought up perilously near to an open breach. On neither occasion was Adolf sure.

Man in the Moon

The world is getting a little tired of Hitler and the Sudeten

Whether it's war or whether it's bluff

The whole of the world has had enough Of Hitler and his swaggering staff Perhaps after all it is only guff.

On a certain Sunday morning the pastor of a negro congregation noticed that an old face had reappeared among his flock and after the sermon, made it a point to welcome the supposedly repentant backslider.

"This is the first time I have seen you at church for a long time," he said. "I'm sh'ly glad to see you here."

"Ah done had to come," explained Rastus. "Ah needs strengthenin'. I've got a job white-washing a chicken coop an' buildin' a fence aroun' a watermelon patch."

A tramp paused outside a large house and as he did so another of his kind came shuffling out of the gate.

"Any luck, mate?" asked the first tramp.

"It ain't no use trying there," was the reply. "It's a poverty-stricken 'ole. There was a couple o' women tryin' to play on one blinkin' planner."

The Commissioner, being of a conscientious nature, made it a point to visit the schoolrooms frequently. In each room he made a little talk in an effort to interest the children in the everyday things of life.

On one such occasion, he was telling them of the blacksmith. "And what kind of arm has the blacksmith?" he asked.

"Big!" shouted the children.

"And why is the blacksmith's arm bigger than mine?"

"He works!" came the chorused reply.

DERBY WINNER AND GOLF CHAMP IN BRITAIN'S SPORT SPOTLIGHT

A French horse and an American golfer have been taking prominent parts in the sport picture of late, over in England, and here they are after their triumphs in the Derby and the amateur golf championships, respectively. At the top, the horse, Bois Roussel, owned by Peter Beatty, son of the late admiral, and a 20-1 shot in the Derby, who romped off with the 159th renewal of the racing classic. Bois Roussel, Jockey Charley Elliot up, is being led to the paddock after the race. Below the golfer, Charley Yates, a member of Uncle Sam's Walker Cup team, who participated in the British amateur golf tourney at Troon, Scotland, and won the trophy he is holding by downing Cecil Ewing, of Ireland, three and two in the final.

SPORT CHAT

Remember when Georges Michel Franch baker made a record when he swam the English Channel in 11 hours, five minutes, 12 years ago today—Michel floated his way to second prize money in the 1937 Canadian National Exhibition 21-mile swim at Toronto in bitterly-cold water. His channel time was eclipsed in 1927 by V. Spacek, Bohemia, who ploughed through the choppy waters in 10 hours, 45 seconds.

The 432-pound shark she hauled in after a strenuous fight set up a new record for lady anglers to shoot at. She is also the first lady to capture a broadbill swordfish by rod-and-line fishing in Canadian waters, having taken a 295-pound broadbill off Louisbourg, N. S., in two hours and 50 minutes.
