CANADA TO HELP

It is satisfactory to know that Canada will be helping to supply airplanes suitable for defence purposes to Great Britain. If the work is to be done outside the British Isles there is no reason why Canada should not handle it. It will increase employment in Canada as well as being an effective help in time of need.

TOURIST BUSINESS

Prince Rupert last summer showed interest in tourists by instituting a tourist bureau, a most important step. Since that the Chamber of Commerce has secured the cooperation of the Canadian Pacific Railway by securing the promise of longer stopovers on tourist boats both north and south bound during the tourist season. The next step would naturally be the construction of the highway from Prince Rupert to Terrace. Other important moves will be the general improvement of the appearance of the city, especially in the matter of gardens. Possibly the city will have a few flower beds on their new Totem; Pole Park next year and the federal government, it is hoped, will do something of the kin'd at the new post office grounds.

THE LIQUOR LAW

It is proposed to change the liquor law to enable the police in inspect the books of the vendors in order that they may know who are the large purchasers i liquor, it being presumed that a bootlegger would be a large purchaser. It does not seem as if this change will affect! Prince Rupert to any appreciable extent. There may be a little bootlegging but probably none of any particular importance.

Indian Agent W. E. Collison Believes They Originated In Asia Several Thousand Years Ago

The aborigines of North and South America are fundamentally one race and it seems apparent that they were of Asiatic origin, having crossed to these continents by way of what is now western Alaska in the stone age thousands of years ago. Such is the belief of Indian Agent W. E. Collison who gave an interesting address before the Prince Rupert Gyro Club yesterday on the intriguing subject of "Who Were the First Inhabitants of This Country and Where Did They Come From?" Mr. Collisen based his conclusions on findings that have been made by scientific research, particularly by the Smithsonian Institute, augmented by some of his own observations through lifelong experience with the native peoples.
