TELL ABOUT OWN LIVES

Interesting Biographical Sketches At Weekly Luncheon of Prince Rupert Gyro Club

Autobiographical sketches by two new members—Croft Brook and J. W. Kilpatrick—comprised the program at Wednesday's regular weekly luncheon of the Prince Rupert Gyro Club with President D. G. Borland in the chair.

Mr. Brook told the club that he was born in Khartoum, Egypt, where his father was a British Army doctor who later perished in action in France during the Great War. As a small boy, Mr. Brook came to California and later to Vancouver. He became a wireless operator and served aboard the boat Algie (later at Prince Rupert) when it was engaged in rum running on the Atlantic Coast. Later he was a wireless operator for the Mexican government at Ensenada. Three years ago he became identified with the Standard Oil Co. of which he is now local manager.

Mr. Kilpatrick told an interesting life story principally associated with railroading, his father being A. C. Kilpatrick, a former superintendent here. Mr. Kilpatrick was born in a small Ontario town and received most of his education at Ottawa. Before the war he came west to engage in railroading. After serving in the Great War, he joined the Grand Trunk Pacific. Since 1930 he had been with the service of the Fisheries Research Board as purchasing agent here.

The Gyro Club decided to co-operate with the Junior Chamber of Commerce in staging a regatta here by appointing W. M. Watts as member of the committee in charge.

F. A. MacCallum was a luncheon guest.

A minister met an old, bent farm laborer.

"Sandy," he said, "why are you walking with your back so bent? Keep it as straight as mine."

Sandy: "Tak' a look o' that field o' corn. It's a' the empty-headed stalks that are standin' strach't up."

COMMITTEES FOR ROTARY

President Coates Announces That Main Objective for Year Will Be Decided Upon Soon

In retiring Thursday as president of the Rotary Club, Weldon McAfee reviewed the work of the year at the weekly luncheon. He said there had been a number of excellent addresses given both from outstanding visitors and local members. Several good members had been lost during the year while a number of good new members had joined the club, there being now forty-one in all. He recommended a system of budgeting which would eliminate the system of making donations to various funds as has been the custom in the past. He congratulated the new president, W. L. Coates, on his assuming office.

Mr. Coates was installed by Dr. W. T. Kergin who referred to the new chairman's five years of service as secretary of the club. It was a tribute to his service that he was elected president. It was his duty to set the pace and the standard for the club during the year. Things had changed in Prince Rupert in the past years. They had come through six or seven years of depression. He considered the Rotary Club was never as badly needed as it was today.

Dr. Kergin said he considered the chief value of the Rotary Club was in giving an opportunity for members to meet at luncheon and thus cultivate a spirit of friendship. Then there was the community service. He urged that a definite project be carried out during the coming Rotary year. In regard to the matter of business ethics, this was a cold world and he did not harbor any silly ideals. All people were more or less selfish and he feared there was a certain amount of hypocrisy in the phrase "Service above self." He urged that honesty in business prevail. He then briefly addressed each new officer and executive.

President Coates said he deeply appreciated the confidence the club had reposed in him. He hoped their confidence had not been misplaced. He urged that a main objective be chosen and asked all the members to give it their close study in order that a wise decision might be arrived at. The following committees were appointed:

- Committees For Year: Aims and Objects Committee—The officers and directors. Club Service—Charles V. Evitt, Max Heilbronner and H. Linzey. Vocational Service—J. J. Little, Dr. L. W. Kergin and Geo. Franklin. Community Service—J. W. Nicholls, Dr. W. T. Kergin, R. C. St. Clair, W. P. Armour. Program—Peter Lakin and S. C. Thompson. Boys' Work—Roy M. Winslow, Neil M. Carter and Dr. C. H. Hankinson. Fellowship and attendance—Dean J. B. Gibson, R. G. Hopkins, Fred Scadden. Public Relations—H. F. Pullen and Lee M. Gordon. Classifications—S. D. Johnston, George Bryant, Hubert Ward. Bulletin—Lee M. Gordon, editor, and A. C. Small, assistant editor. Membership—J. W. Nicholls, Dr. W. T. Kergin and John Dybhavn.
