Considerable Damage Done to Boats By Sunday Gale

QUEEN CHARLOTTE CITY, Sept. 23.—One of the worst southeasters experienced for many years on the Queen Charlotte Islands occurred on Sunday last. Several gasboats and small craft were driven ashore, some suffering considerable damage.

The Isa B., better known as the Queen of the Seas, piled up on the rocks near Queen Charlotte City with the owner on board. Prompt and skillful action on the part of many kind and willing workers prevented the sturdy craft from becoming a total wreck. The Isa B. was built by George Freeman at the age of seventy-two at Lena Island, a few miles from Queen Charlotte City. It was launched a year ago. Mr. Freeman, a craftsman of exceptional ability, built the launch alone with the aid of his daughter. It took two years to complete and is considered a masterpiece of skill and efficiency. Wild game is very plentiful on the Queen Charlotte Islands this fall. Many large flocks of geese are in evidence and deer are much more common than cattle and equally as tame. On a recent trip from Port Clements to Queen Charlotte City eighty-eight were counted. Gardens are being molested daily. Many deer were accounted for on the opening day of the season last week.

Swallows on the Queen Charlotte Islands have been known to raise two lots of young this year. The second lot left their nests last week.

Miss Renwick of Vancouver, who has been relieving on the staff of the Queen Charlotte City Hospital, has returned to her home in the south.

Miss Young arrived on the last boat from Vancouver to take charge of the Queen Charlotte City public school.

is seldom seen in this part of the country. Mr. Freeman and family now reside in Victoria.

Tribute Paid To Dr. Size

Dental Practitioner of Many Years Standing Dies on Queen Charlotte Islands

QUEEN CHARLOTTE CITY, Sept. 23.—Dr. P. F. Size, who for years practised dentistry at various points on the Queen Charlotte Islands, passed away a few days ago in his home "Rockcliffe" on the Graham Island Highway. He was highly esteemed by all who knew him and his passing is generally mourned on the Islands. He had practised at Massett as well as at Queen Charlotte City. The widow, one son and four daughters survive.

The funeral service was conducted from the home by Rev. A. Abraham of Massett. Many were present to pay their final tributes of respect to the memory of deceased and there were numerous beautiful floral offerings. The pallbearers were Dr. J. C. Dunn and Harry Frost of Massett, Edward Olsen of Skidegate and G. D. Beattie, Gordon H. Jolliffe and Charles Hastie, all of Queen Charlotte.

Whifflets From The Waterfront

Capt. Andy Christiansen of Queen Charlotte brought in two good trips of cohoes and spring salmon from the West Coast to Skidegate recently, selling to Nelson Bros. Fisheries Ltd. Capt. Christiansen's troller is the well known Chapa.

The Seattle halibut schooner Eagle, that went ashore in Johnston Straits, dumped 30,000 pounds of halibut and then floated off.

The schooner Electra broke her rudder when 400 miles off Cape Omany in the Gulf of Alaska. She is reported to be on her way to the Cape where she expects to meet the Coast Guard.

I like the NEW NOTE this rug strikes!

BY EVAN PARRY, F.R.A.I.C. Editor "Your Home" Department, CHATELAIN

The rug illustrated is "SURREY", Congoleum style-leader No. 491.

"This pattern is one of the most attractive Congoleum has ever produced," says Evan Parry. "The simple design with an old rose background is a new note. This rug can also be used in rooms other than bedrooms." (What Evan Parry says of the pattern illustrated above is true of the whole Congoleum Fall line: these rugs are beyond question the smartest, most colourful Congoleum designers have ever evolved. See these sensational patterns at your dealer's—and remember—Congoleum Gold Seal Rugs have many other advantages: they are easy-to-clean—a damp mop keeps them spotless—they lie flat without fastening of any kind—and they are surprisingly inexpensive. Look for the Gold Seal when buying: it is your only guarantee of complete satisfaction.
