Japanese bombers reaper a harvest of death and destruction when they rained hombs on Canton gaily for 13 days. The toil of dead and vounded was estimated at 8,000, most of whom were non-combatants. The ruins of a home in the western residential section of the crowded metropolis of Southern China is shown here as laborers search the ruins for bodies.

An innocent victim of the Japanese war with China, the body of this man gives mute testimony of the terrific destruction wrought by the Japanese bombings of Canton. He was killed as the bombs scored a direct hit on the building he was in.
