TRIBUTE IS PAID

Trades and Labor Council Delegates Honor Memory of Late S. D. Macdonald

The Prince Rupert Trades and Labor Council, in the course of Labor Day proceedings yesterday, visited Fairview Cemetery during the morning to pay fitting tribute to the memory of the late S. D. Macdonald, for many years president of the organization, who passed away last year. A wreath was placed on the grave and J. J. Gillis, now president, spoke briefly, stating that it was fitting that tribute should be paid on this day to the departed brother who had done so much for the advancement of labor and promotion of good sport. J. A. Frew, who was a close personal friend of the late Mr. Macdonald, also spoke along similar lines after which the delegates observed a period of silence.

Those who attended the ceremony were J. J. Gillis, Frank Derry, Jack Campbell, Thomas Elliott, W. M. Brown, James Black, Thomas B. Black, James M. Campbell, J. A. Frew and Hugh Smith.

It's No Surprise That You're Constipated!

If constipation has you bogged down so you feel tired, sunk, all played out—It's time you asked yourself some questions!
What have you had to eat lately? Just meat, bread, eggs, potatoes? It's no surprise you're constipated! The chances are you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It's a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.
If this is what you lack, your ticket is crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B.
Eat All-Bran every day, drink plenty of water, and take a new lease on life! All-Bran is made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. Sold by every grocer.

Major J. G. Rycroft, district armament officer from Esquimalt, and Sergeant J. Middleton, after spending a few days here on business in connection with the 102nd Battery are sailing by the Catala this afternoon on their return to Victoria.

FEWER ARE IN SCHOOL

More Than 2,000,000 Children Are Registered in Canada

TORONTO, Sept. 6: (CP)—Canada's future statesmen, doctors, generals, craftsmen, lawyers and bankers, having dusted their school books, today trudged past inviting playing fields to modern versions of the little red school house.

About 2,100,000 sturdy Canadian boys and girls with a healthy happy summer behind them, resume their training. There are fewer pupils in the lower grades with an increase in high school registration.

Most famous of this year's students are five young ladies from Callander, Ont., the Dionne quintuplets, whose chubby fingers will trace out letters under the guidance of Miss Gaetane Vezina of Ottawa. Probably the children will be taught in French only, at first, as desired by their father, Oliva Dionne.

Provincial departments of education have estimated a slight decrease in the total school population this year, probably about 60,000 less than last year's total.

Canada's peak school attendance year was 1934 when 2,527,000 children overcrowded the nation's school facilities. Attendance trends in most parts of Canada have been dominated by two main factors, economic conditions and a falling birth rate.

Manitoba's elementary school attendance last year of 95,563 was 28 per cent less than 10 years ago, but the high school attendance of 44,970 was 81 per cent higher. As in many other parts of the Dominion fewer children are starting school, but they stay longer, because fewer jobs are open.

Large Provinces Lead
Quebec and Ontario, as the largest provinces, have by far the most students. Quebec has an estimated 637,000 students, divided into Roman Catholic, 563,000 and Protestant, 74,000. There are 544,000 in elementary schools and 93,000 in secondary schools.

Average attendance in Ontario last year was 604,734 compared with 512,175 just 10 years ago. Attendance in secondary schools was 104,804 last year, 55 per cent higher than 10 years ago.

Saskatchewan schools, hampered by years of drought-caused poverty, were attended by 215,600 students last year, divided 180,148 in elementary schools and the remainder in secondary schools.

Alberta's school attendance last year was 167,950. British Columbia increased by 2,000 last year to 120,360. Nova Scotia, where some rural schools opened last week, leads the Maritimes with 117,000 students last year, with New Brunswick school attendance at 86,946 and Prince Edward Island's at 18,146.

Better Teachers
While summer vacations are over for Canadian school children, for many of the nation's 700,000 teachers school opening means something like a holiday.

Schools from coast to coast constantly demand a higher educational standard for teaching staffs, which means the final term's school bell for the children summons roughly half the teachers to summer schools for extra training.

The summer schools, geared for fast-paced teaching, often make their pupils work harder than the same teachers work when they return to the school rooms.

Two Canadian provinces, Manitoba and Alberta, have raised the requirements for normal school students this year. They now must have grade 12 standing, equivalent to roughly first year university.

Prince Edward Island will demand a higher standard next year. Two years' training, one year academic followed by one year of normal training will be required to obtain a lowest class teacher's licence.

Raise School Age
New regulations going into effect in Prince Edward Island include raising of compulsory school-attendance age from seven to 13 years to seven to 15. Charlottetown principals are to be given additional help to enable them to concentrate on duties of a supervisory character.

Dr. Robert Fletcher, Manitoba deputy minister of education, believes increased high school registration is due to realization of pupils it is to their benefit to remain in classes rather than go out into a world in which jobs are scarce. Changing curricula make heavy demands on teachers. Ontario and Alberta both are undergoing major revisions of their teaching courses, meaning extra work for their teachers.

Saskatchewan teachers face a brighter prospect of higher wages and better school equipment than they have for several years, through improved returns from prairie farmlands.

Throughout the rest of the Dominion other teachers report generally an upward trend in their salaries.

Six carloads of frozen fish for transshipment East over Canadian National Railways arrived from Ketchikan over the week-end. The motorship Northland was in port Sunday with three carloads. The Fairbanks was also in Sunday with two carloads and the Venus yesterday with one carload.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Batt left Robson by motor for a honeymoon trip to Spokane, Vancouver and the Arrow Lakes district after which they will proceed to Rosland to take up residence.
